Obama's 1978 High School literary magazine refers to another relationship with an older man. An excerpt is given below (unfortunately, the poems become more graphic):

"Seeking a hiding place, the night seals us together.
A transient spark lights his face, and in my honor,
He pulls out forgotten dignity from under his flaking coat."

Author Jack Cashill describes 2 of Obama's father figures in the link below. These 2, Frank Davis and cross-dresser "Evie", were both intrusively gay, targeting young people.

4 of Obama's father figures were a traumatic disappointment to the young man. Chronologically, they were, Obama Sr., Soetoro, "Evie", Davis.
