Dear Mr. President Barack O'Bama,

P6/b(6)

Although [redacted] when elected I personally thought of all people, you would be the most qualified to bridge the indifferences between the various ethnicities of the greatest country the world has known, specifically between the African-American community and the white community.

The infamous beer summit apparently was a missed opportunity for you to bridge those differences, however you chose to side with the African-American community, without I might add, reviewing the facts surrounding the issue before injecting your opinion. I chalked that up to your inexperience at the time and gave you the benefit of the doubt.

Here we are 4 years later and the most recent, unfortunate, high profile tragedy, involving Trayvon Martin, its' evident of your personal position.

Mr. President, you, especially of a white mother and African father, missed a great opportunity to bridge the racial indifferences, but rather than leading us, you choose to further divide the races, some might say, even creating more tension amongst us.

I felt compelled to share with you, personally, how saddened I am with your position.

Thank-you in advance, for taking the time to read this, I truly appreciate it and anxiously look forward to your reply.
