Dear President Barack Obama;

Just wanted to say Happy Birthday and Thank You!

Thank you for too many things to put on one sheet of paper, but I'll try. At the top of the list is the Affordable Care Act and the protections it offers. Your respect for the non-white, non-male and non-elite shows through in the Lilly Ledbetter Act, your support of women to make their own healthcare and life choices; your support of non-heterosexuals to have equal human rights (marriage equality and removing 'Don't ask Don't tell'). I appreciate your courage, patience, persistence and ability to communicate. I thought the 'Beer Summit' was a wonderful outside-the-box idea, as well as 'Invite a Republican to Dinner'!

I have a friend who was a Republican who understood (some of) the complexities of saving the auto industry (since that's the business he has been in for 30 years). Now he's a registered independent.

Your sense of humor - especially at the Correspondence Dinners - made me laugh to tears. Your speeches often move me to tears, too. So loving, understanding and connected with people.

You may already have the enclosed, but I'll add it just in case. I just found this tonight and will be handing these out - especially to my fellow National Organization for Women members. You've made a huge difference economically with CFPB and restricting/preventing predatory lending. You took a speeding yacht heading straight toward land and steered it carefully back out to sea.

Anyway, you certainly don't deserve all the friction and push-back that you get! I hope you can have a few 'easy days' and a great, fun birthday!

Love,

Quinta Ewing

President Obama's Top 50 First Term Accomplishments

Everyone has one of 'those' kinds of friends, either on the left or the right - people who keep complaining that President Obama hasn't done enough in less than four years in office. With that in mind, this card is for you - and for your friends. Feel free to print out the fold-up wallet-sized cards for your own reference, and give some to 'those' kinds of friends as well. And when you need more details, log on, and read up - then 'em hand out.
