White House Overview

WHITE HOUSE HISTORY

- Oldest public building in Washington.
- The White House is the only residence of a head of state that is open to the public on a regular basis free of charge.
- Construction began in 1792 under George Washington.
 - George Washington never got to live in the White House.
- 1800: President John Adams and wife, Abigail, were first to move in.
- The White House is also referred to as the President's House and the Executive Mansion, but Theodore Roosevelt made "The White House" the official name in 1901.
- White House construction dates:
 - 1792 (the laying of the White House cornerstone)
 - 1817 (the re-opening of the White House after the 1814 burning during the War of 1812)
 - 1902 (the Theodore Roosevelt renovation)
 - 1952 (Truman renovation)
- Survived fires in 1814 and 1929
 - The 1929 fire was caused by a blocked fireplace on Christmas Eve. Then President Hoover left his Christmas party to direct firefighting efforts until Secret Service intervened.
- Including its two basement levels, the White House is almost 100,000 square feet
 - The White House has its own medical clinic and dental office.
 - The recreational facilities include: exercise room, a billiard room, a movie theatre, a bowling alley, a swimming pool, a tennis court / basketball court, a putting green, a jogging track, and a horseshoe pit.
 - Indoor plumbing was first installed in 1834.
 - The first elevator, a hydraulic elevator, was installed in 1881.
 - Electricity was first introduced to the White House in 1891.
 - 132 rooms and 35 bathrooms, 412 doors and 147 windows, 28 fireplaces and 8 staircases
- There is a White House florist in charge of designing and changing the floral arrangements- see flowers on ROTUS' desk.
 - The White House florist is also responsible for holiday decorations, see photo of Halloween 2013 (4).

PETS IN THE WHITE HOUSE

- Most former Presidents had dogs and cats, but there have been a variety of unusual pets in the White House.
- John Quincy Adams and Herbert Hoover both had pet alligators. Hoover's son, Allen Henry Hoover, had 2 gators that the president sometimes let run around the White House grounds. John Quincy Adams' gator was a gift from the Marquis de Lafayette.
- Thomas Jefferson had a pet mockingbird that flew freely around the White House unless they had guests.
- Calvin and Grace Coolidge had the most animals by far. Along with 12 dogs, they had a donkey, a goose, bobcat, raccoons, lion cubs, a bear, a wallaby, and a pygmy hippo.
- Teddy Roosevelt also had many pets, including horses, snakes, and a flying squirrel!
- William Howard Taft had the last two cows at the White House to date.
 - The lion cubs (named Tax Reduction and Budget Bureau), the wallaby, the hippo and the bear were given to them foreign dignitaries.
- President Eisenhower's parakeet, Gabby, was buried in 1957 at the southwest corner of the Executive Mansion.
- John F. Kennedy had canaries, parakeets, horses, hamsters and rabbits. He also had a mutt named Pushinka that was a gift from Nikita Khrushchev.
- The Obamas have two Portuguese water dogs, Bo and Sunny. The breed was chosen in part due to Malia Obama's allergies.
- Bo was a gift from Senator Ted Kennedy. Sunny was adopted by a breeder, so the Obamas made a donation to the Humane Society in her name.
- Bo is often referred to as "The First Dog" or DOTUS (Dog of the United States).

WHITE HOUSE FACTS QUIZ

- What two countries house twin buildings to the White House?
 - France & Ireland. The first is a tourist attraction and the second houses the Irish President. Some think the Irish version was influenced by Irish architect James Hoban, who designed the DC White House.
- What practical joke did Clinton staffers play on George W. Bush's staffers before leaving?
 - Rumor has it aides from Clinton's administration removed all "W"s from keyboards before George W. Bush took office!
- How did Winston Churchill startle White House staff during his visit for 24 days in 1941?
 - Mr. Churchill refused to wear any clothes when he was in his room.
- Who was president for only 32 days and why?
 - William Henry Harrison was president only 32 days. He caught pneumonia and died after standing outside for hours during his inauguration.
- Who established Hail to the Chief as the President's arrival number?
 - First Lady Sarah Polk: President James Polk was not an impressive figure, so something was needed in the form of an announcement when he entered the room.

WHITE HOUSE ART

- The White House Historical Association is a charitable nonprofit institution whose purpose is to enhance the understanding, appreciation and enjoyment of the White House. From private funding and the sale of its educational products, the Association supports the acquisition of artwork and objects for the White House collection and contributes to the conservation of the public rooms.
- The White House collection contains some of the finest art and sculptures in the world. It is an ever changing collection, featuring donations by artists and organizations as well as pieces procured by Presidents and First Ladies themselves.
- Gilbert Stuart's idealized portrait of the first President, George Washington, housed in the East Room, is the cornerstone of the collection
- First Ladies of recent decades deserve great credit for much of the art featured in this collection on-line.
 - Jacqueline Kennedy set the goal of collecting works by the country's finest artists.
 - Lady Bird Johnson enthusiastically continued that pursuit.
 - Patricia Nixon's efforts added 18 portraits of Presidents and First Ladies.
 - Elizabeth Ford, Rosalynn Carter, Nancy Reagan, Barbara Bush and Hillary Rodham Clinton also have taken a special interest in the history of the mansion.
 - First Lady Clinton initiated eight exhibitions of twentieth century American sculpture during her term.
- They, and the collection itself, have been immeasurably helped by former curators of the White House--Lorraine Pearce, William Elder, James Ketchum, and Clement Conger--and by the present curator, Betty Monkman, and other members of the curatorial staff.

- Colonnade created by FDR so handicap accessible.
- WH one of the first buildings in America to be handicap accessible.
- East Colonnade is indoors- runs from the East Wing to the Residence.

Rose Garden

- Ellen A. Wilson, first wife of WW, created first Rose Garden, 1913
- Redesigned in 1961 for President and Mrs. JFK.
- Rose Garden was the location of the 2009 “Beer Summit”, where POTUS met with Prof. Henry Louis Gates and Sgt. James Crowley to discuss their recent racial controversy, see photo (3).
- The President often gives remarks from the Rose Garden.
- Rose Garden Weddings:
 - June 12, 1971: Tricia Nixon (daughter of President Nixon)
 - May 28, 1994: Anthony Rodham (brother of Hillary Clinton)

South Lawn

- Presidential arrivals and departures on Marine One.
- The swing set & playground is located behind the oval office to the right.
- Truman Balcony, established by Truman 1948.
 - The stars on the ceiling of the Oval Office have 8 points instead of 5. They were going to fix them, but had spent too much money on the Truman Balcony construction and have since left them.
- Woodrow Wilson kept a flock of sheep on the White House lawn during World War I as a symbol of support for the troops. An auction for their wool raised 52K for the Red Cross, see photo (2).
- Jimmy Carter’s daughter Amy, had a treehouse on the South Lawn.

1st Floor Hallway

- Only 3 jumbos do not change: Bin Laden raid, McKayla Maroney, Jacob Philadelphia “I want to know if my hair is just like yours”

 - Portraits: TR, Jefferson, Eisenhower, Washington
 - Painting of signing of Declaration of Independence

Outer Oval

Watch Meeting - Dec. 31st 1862 - Waiting For the Hour by William Tolman Carlton, oil on canvas, 1863

- Gift of the Republican National Finance Committee, 1972
- This painting depicts slaves waiting on December 31, 1862 for the stroke of midnight, the moment at which Abraham Lincoln's Emancipation Proclamation was to take effect.
- The focal point of the dramatically lit room is the watch held at the center of the composition, its anchor-shaped fob a Christian symbol of hope.
- This work was probably a study for the currently lost original given to Abraham Lincoln by William Lloyd Garrison as a representative of an abolitionist group

OVAL OFFICE

Overview

- First Oval Office built in 1909 in center of south side of WW (Taft).
- 1934 moved to current location by FDR to overlook Rose Garden.
- Each President decorates office according to own taste
 - President Obama- First President to have wallpaper
 - Has apples on table- symbol of health
- Constants: White marble mantel, Presidential seal in plaster on ceiling, two flags behind President's desk (U.S. and President's flag).
- President's formal workspace; spends most of day here in meetings.
- Door on the left is the secretary/ personal aid (see peephole), door on the right is the President's private dining room and office w/ computer
- Seating: If looking at fireplace (which works!)- President sits on right and visiting head of state sits on left.

Why is the Oval Office Oval?

- Built to match the oval rooms in the residence, including blue room.
- Oval rooms date back to Washington, who favored them for hosting receptions so that his guests could stand in a circle around him and everyone was equal distance from him, a symbol of Democracy.

Sculptures

Bronco Buster by Frederic Remington

- An original cast - a gift of Miss Virginia Hatfield and Mrs. Louis Hatfield Stickney during the Carter Administration
- Bronze sculpture made in 1895 by Remington- who was declared legally blind before he died in 1909
- First and most popular Remington sculpture- of a Western frontier cowboy fighting to stay on a rearing bronco, with a stirrup swinging free, a quirt in one hand and a fistful of mane and reins in the other.

Busts

Resolute Desk

- Made from timbers of HMS Resolute.
 - Abandoned at sea during British expedition 1854.
 - Recovered by US whaling ship; refurbished and returned to Queen Victoria 1855.
- Queen Victoria gave desk to President Hayes in 1880.
- Every President has used the desk in some capacity (not always in the Oval) except LBJ, Nixon, and Gerald Ford.
- Lyndon B. Johnson was too tall for the desk, and Ronald Raegan raised the desk by 2 inches to accommodate taller owners.
- Presidential Seal on Desk
 - Vanity panel created under FDR to hide wheelchair (eagle faces left towards arrow)
 - Until 1945, eagle could face either way (arrows or olive branch)
 - 1945 Truman signed Executive Order requiring eagle to face olive branch as a sign of peace (right)

Oval Office Art

Statue of Liberty Painting by Norman Rockwell

- Given as a holiday gift during Clinton Admin by Steven Spielberg
- Clintons wanted to keep the painting, but were told they have to buy it-worth millions of dollars- so it stayed.

LOWER PRESS HALLWAY

George Catlin Paintings

- George Catlin (1796-1872) journeyed west five times in the 1830s to paint the Plains Indians and their way of life.
- Catlin was the first artist to record the Plains Indians in their own territories.
- Catlin lobbied the U.S. government for patronage throughout his career, hoping Congress would purchase the Indian Gallery as a legacy for future generations.
- Disappointed in this goal, Catlin went bankrupt in 1852. A Philadelphia industrialist paid Catlin's debts and acquired the Indian Gallery, and soon after Catlin's death, the paintings were donated to the Smithsonian.
- Today Catlin's Indian Gallery is recognized as a great cultural treasure, offering rare insight into native cultures and a crucial chapter in American history.
- His portraits are on display at the National Portrait Gallery.
- These paintings have been on loan from National Gallery of Art since Reagan Admin.

So You Want to See the President

- By Norman Rockwell
- Four-panel illustration drawn for the November 13, 1943 Saturday Evening Post
- Steve Early, FDR's Press Sec, facilitated Rockwell's 3-day visit
- Rockwell sketched actual WW lobby visitors waiting to see POTUS (including Miss America).
 - Artist placed himself in all four panels, find him!
- Rockwell gave to Early as gift of appreciation.
 - Early died, family found sketches in attic, Early's Grandson loaned to WH in 1978.
- Frames made from bird's eye maple from Rockwell front yard.
- 1978 appraised $12,000, now considered priceless.
- No prints ever made of sketches.
- NEVER to be loaned out or to go on tour.

WEST WING LOBBY

- Waiting area for visitors who have appointments w/President or staff, including heads of state.
- Nixon created current WW lobby when est. separate press room.
- Mrs. Clinton had ROTUS' desk created with computer inside.

Gallery Clock

- Wood with Gilded gold, c.1810
- Made by Simon Willard, most prominent member in famous clock making Smith family.
- Type used in churches and public assembly buildings.
- 13 balls coming out of eagle's mouth represent the 13 colonies.
- Notice the number four has four bars instead of traditional Roman numeral- Willard felt the roman numeral 4 ruined the symmetry.

Emigrant Scene Attributed to William Henry Powell

- Depicts wagon train members receiving directions from Native American guide
- The picture took him several years to make- started at the age of 14
- There is disagreement about which side he began on because one side is much more detailed.
 - Did he start strong and get bored along the way or did he get more skilled and complex as he went along?

Bookcase

- Oldest piece of furniture in the White House- older than the White House!
- Mahogany, c.1770
- Contains bound copies of presidential documents
 - Speeches, proclamations, executive orders, etc.

Washington Crossing the Delaware by Emanuel Leutze this copy by Eastman Johnson

- Authorized reproduction of American Revolution scene- Original displayed in Metropolitan Museum of Art, NY
- Washington crossed the Delaware on Christmas Day 1776

- Historical inaccuracies exist but purpose of painting is symbolic representation of "cycle of freedom"
 - Washington crossed the Delaware at night
 - No flag
 - Delaware River didn't have icebergs- it had some ice but was not frozen over
 - Women would not have been rowing the boat
 - Washington was afraid of water and would not have been standing. He was also 44 years old at the time of the crossing
 - They crossed on flat bottom boats
 - Horses and cannons were probably taken across the River on ferry boats and other watercrafts after Washington made it across
 - The section of the river they crossed was 300 yards wide

Vernal Falls, Yosemite by Thomas Hill (1829-1908)

- Gift of the White House Historical Association, 1973
- Hill moved permanently to California in 1871, he became best known for his many landscapes of Yosemite Valley.

Old Faithful by Albert Bierstadt, 1881

Cannonading on the Potomac October, 1861 By Wordsworth Thompson

- Depicts Battle of Balls Bluff- Civil War battle near Leesburg, VA
- The man in the red cape on the horse was a good friend of Abraham Lincoln's named Edward Dickinson Baker- he was killed during the battle and Lincoln later named one of his sons after him
- Also, there was a member of the Fife and Drum Corps who was injured multiple times during the battle- each time he was patched up and he got back to the action

Ships (Official Title is listed on the frame) By W.J Huggins

- Depicts the first naval engagement between the US and the British during the war of 1812
- W.J. Huggins was a popular English marine painter who lived from 1781-1845

Shinnecock Hills, Long Island By William Merritt Chase

View of Gookin Falls, Rutland, Vermont – 1848 by Frederic Edwin Church

WEST WING ENTRANCE AND NORTH LAWN

- Pennsylvania Avenue closed since 1995- Oklahoma City bombing
 - Now only open for pedestrians, Inaugural Parade
- A Marine stands guard at the North door to the West Wing whenever the President is in the West Wing.
- Press Stake Out: After an official (member of Congress, Senator, Head of State) meets with POTUS, can go in front of WW to tell reporters what was said in meeting
- There are “North” and “South” sides of the White House so that dignitaries do not enter or exit via a “back” or “front” door.

Pebble Beach

- It became the spot always used for stand-ups since it had the best view, but always muddy and they couldn't keep grass
- Started in 1998 - Clinton went to Africa; WH installed honeycomb grating and gravel to create Pebble Beach
- President Bush installed permanent stone to hide wires and create more permanent home for press
- Press shots from above WH are taken from buildings across Lafayette Park where tents are located

Correspondents

- TV cameras have designated spots for reporting throughout the day
- Each WH correspondent has unique view of WH behind them in broadcast
- Correspondents spend majority of day in press briefing room but use Pebble Beach for broadcasts and interviews

PRESS BRIEFING ROOM

- Created in 1969 by Nixon to accommodate the growing number of reporters assigned to the White House.
- In 2000, was renamed the "James S. Brady Press Briefing Room" in honor of James Brady, the press secretary who was shot and permanently disabled during an assassination attempt on President Ronald Reagan in 1981.
- Site originally housed FDR's swimming pool used for polio rehab-installed by the March of Dimes.
- Empty pool still underneath.
 - Deep end under podium, shallow end under camera crews.
- By 2000, 18 miles TV cable installed underground.
- Current theater-style seating arrangement.
 - Press Sec. assigns seating by organization name plates on chairs
- About 200 people cover WH - 60 regular WH correspondents
- Daily use:
 - 9:45 Press Gaggle, Pres. Sec. briefs reporters on upcoming events
 - Afternoon - on-camera briefing
- Behind the briefing room you can see the desks/ office space for press.

East Wing Tour Guide

EAST WING OVERVIEW

- A two-story structure on the east side of the White House Executive Residence, the home of the President.
- Serves as office space for the offices of Legislative Affairs and the First Lady and her staff, including the White House Social Secretary and White House Graphics and Calligraphy Office.
- Includes the White House Theater, the visitor's entrance, and the East Colonnade
- Social visitors to the White House usually enter in the East Wing
- The East Wing as it exists today was added to the White House in 1942.
 - Around the same time, Theodore Roosevelt's coatroom became the movie theater.
 - Later, offices for calligraphers and the social secretary were placed in the East Wing.
 - Eleanor Roosevelt employed the first Social Secretary.
- Rosalynn Carter, in 1977, was the first to place her personal office in the East Wing and to formally call it the "Office of the First Lady"

EAST COLONNADE

- The corridor connecting the body of the East Wing to the residence.
- Each set of framed photos in the hallway has a theme.
- Out the window is the First Lady's Garden, also called the Kennedy Garden, after First Lady Jaqueline Kennedy.
- Through the door on the right is the First Family's movie theater, see photo (1).

Book Seller's Room

- Used to sell books in the room when White House tours were open to the public, before 9/11, during certain hours without pre-security clearance.
- The two Presidents featured in the room--Fillmore and Arthur--both used to sell books.

LIBRARY

- Was used as a laundry room until Roosevelt's renovations in 1902
- Became a library until 1935.
- Contains 2,700 works of American life and thought.
- The room is an actual functioning library, First Family can check out books here.

Library Art:

- Native American portraits by Charles Bird King
- Loans from the National Museum of the American Indian
- Chandelier, from the home of Last of the Mohicans author
- Room contains George Washington's sword.

Mountain at Bear Lake – Taos by Georgia O'Keeffe

- The O'Keeffe painting was purchased by Hilary Clinton in 1997 and is the first painting by a major 20th Century American women to be exhibited in the state rooms of the White House.

THE VERMEIL ROOM

- The room takes its name from the large collection of vermeil (gilded silver) received by the White House in 1958 as a bequest of Margaret Thompson Biddle.
 - Largest collection of vermeil outside of the Vatican.
- The 1,575 piece collection contains examples of work by the most prominent English and French silversmiths working in the 18th and 19th centuries.
- The room has been used as a coat room, dressing room, office, waiting room, conference room, and billiard room.
- First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy painted most of the wooden panels in the East Wing, including those in this room.
- This room is also used to display portraits of first ladies who served in the mid twentieth century.

Eleanor Roosevelt by Douglas Chandor

- Multiple image portrait

Larry Bird Johnson by Elizabeth Shoumatoff

- Mrs. Johnson chose the Jefferson Memorial as her background

Jacqueline Kennedy by Aaron Shikler

- Painted in 1970 in her New York apartment

Nancy Reagan by Aaron Shikler

- Same artist as Kennedy, this portrait hangs on the east wall

Patricia Ryan Nixon by Henriette Wyeth

- Hangs on the north wall

Lou Henry Hoover by Richard Brown

- Hangs on the north wall

THE CHINA ROOM

- Almost every past President is represented in the China Room either by state or family china or glassware.
- The collection is arranged chronologically,
 - Beginning to the right of the fireplace.
- Even the earliest Presidents received government funds to purchase state china.
- The China Room bathroom was a favorite of George HW Bush.
- Grace Coolidge's dress had to be lengthened after the portrait was completed, because you could see her ankles and people were offended, see photo (2).
 - Her dogs name was Rob Roy, named after a prohibition cocktail, which is essentially a Manhattan but with Scotch whiskey exclusively.
- The red color scheme was determined by the color of Mrs. Coolidge's dress in her portrait.

THE EAST ROOM

- The largest room in the house
- Designated by architect James Hoban as the "Public Audience Room."
- Used for large gatherings, such as press conferences, bill-signing ceremonies, after-dinner entertaining, concerts, weddings, funerals, and award presentations.
- Where President Obama walked out to announce the death of Osama bin Laden
- Chelsea Clinton used to roller blade in the East Room.
- Teddy Roosevelt used to box with his staff in the East Room.
- Susan Ford, daughter of President Gerald Ford, hosted her senior prom in the East Room, see photo (3). The Beach Boys were set to play the gig, but declined after they were denied permission to film the event.
- Abigail Adams used the unfinished East Room to hang her laundry out to dry.

George Washington by Gilbert Stuart

- The only object to have remained in the White House since it opened in 1800.
- In 1814, the British burned the White House after U.S. forces set fire to the Canadian parliament. The George Washington portrait was saved by a fleeing Dolly Madison, and is one of the few things that survived the fire. She cut the portrait out of the frame in order to save it.

THE GREEN ROOM

- Throughout much of its existence, the Green Room has served as a parlor for teas and receptions.
- By 1825, under John Quincy Adams, the room had become the “Green Drawing Room,” named for the color of the draperies.
- The furnishings reflect the Federal period and most date 1800-1815.
- Many of the pieces are attributed to the New York workshop of the well-known Scottish-born cabinetmaker Duncan Phyfe.

Adams Coffee Urn

- Engraved on the front of this English silver-plated urn is the monogram “JAA” for John and Abigail Adams.

Benjamin Franklin by David Martin

- When this portrait was painted in 1767, Franklin was the most famous of all Americans, at home and abroad.
- He is portrayed reviewing property deeds from a dispute he settled for a Scotsman, who commissioned this likeness.
- Overlooking the scene is a bust of Sir Isaac Newton - mathematician, scientist, and philosopher.

Sand Dunes at Sunset, Atlantic City by Henry Ossawa Tanner

- Tanner was the most distinguished African-American artist of the nineteenth century and the first to be represented here.

Independence Hall in Philadelphia by Ferdinand Richardt

- This wonderful street scene of mid-19th century Philadelphia was probably sketched by the artist in 1858, but not painted until several years later.
- In 1962, an American antique dealer discovered it in India and purchased it for seven dollars.

The Mosquito Net by John Singer Sargent

- This scene was painted in 1912 during an annual summer trip to either Italy or Switzerland.

The Builders by Jacob Lawrence

- Jacob Lawrence was one of the first artists to represent Modernist depictions of African- Americans.

THE BLUE ROOM

- Oval shape: Architect James Hoban's 1792 plan for the White House included three stacked oval rooms in the center of the building that form a projecting bow on the south side.
 - The creation of the Oval Office in the West Wing in 1909 was inspired by these oval rooms in the Residence.
- Planned to be the most elegant of the State Floor parlors, this room is typically used to receive important guests, including the leaders of foreign nations.
- This parlor became known as the Blue Room in the Martin Van Buren administration, when blue textiles were introduced to the room. Previously, the upholstery had been red.
- The Blue Room houses especially fine life portraits of the first four presidents to live in the White House, painted by important early American artists
 - John Adams by John Trumbull
 - Thomas Jefferson by Rembrandt Peale
 - James Madison by John Vanderlyn
 - James Monroe by Samuel Morse.
- Also notable is the portrait of William Howard Taft by Anders Zorn located above the doorway which shows Taft in the Blue Room.
- Family events held here include the wedding of Grover Cleveland, the only sitting President to marry in the White House.
- The Blue Room is home to the Official White House Christmas tree during the holidays, smaller trees can also be found in various rooms throughout the residence during the holidays.

THE RED ROOM

- This parlor has been known as the “Red Room” since 1845, when a suite of furniture upholstered in “Crimson Plush” was introduced to the room.
- The Red Room is furnished in the Empire style of 1810-1830, influenced by the archeological findings of Napoleon’s campaign in Egypt (1798-99).
- The stars, urns, lyres, and sphinxes that adorn the furniture in this room are characteristic of the Empire style.
- George W. Bush used to clear out the Red Room every Valentine’s Day for a romantic dinner with Laura.

Rutherford B. Hayes by Daniel Huntington

- This portrait of President Hayes is a particularly appropriate painting for this room. President Hayes was actually sworn in here in 1877, after a disputed election.
- Out-going President Grant witnessed the Chief Justice of the United States administer the oath of office to Hayes, unbeknownst to the dinner guests next door in the State Dining Room.

Landscapes

- Albert Bierstadt’s Rocky Mountain Landscape, John Frederick Kensett’s Niagara Falls, Martin Johnson Heade’s Florida Sunrise, and Alfred Bricher’s Castle Rock, Nahant, Massachusetts.

The Van Burens

- The prominent painting in the Red Room, hanging over the mantel is the portrait of Angelica Singleton Van Buren, daughter-in-law and official hostess for President Martin Van Buren.
- This portrait by Henry Inman includes a bust of President Van Buren in the background to remind viewers of her connection to the president.
- President Van Buren is also represented in the room with a portrait painted by Francis Alexander.

THE STATE DINING ROOM

- This room was Thomas Jefferson's Cabinet room and office, where he and his secretary, Meriwether Lewis, planned the Lewis and Clark Expedition in 1802.
- It has served as the State Dining Room since 1809, with the smaller Family Dining Room to its north.
- In 1902, with the removal of a staircase at this end of the Cross Hall, the State Dining Room was enlarged and completely redesigned for President Theodore Roosevelt.
- Remaining from that renovation are the oak paneling (first painted in 1952), the three eagle-pedestal side tables, the Queen Anne-style chairs, and the lighting fixtures.
- The table centerpiece is a French gilded bronze plateau purchased by James Monroe in 1817. Its mirrored floor was designed to reflect the candles held by figures of classical women on its gallery and the flowers in complementary baskets.
- Wild animal heads that had been hung on the dark wooden walls were removed in the 1920s.
- The center plaque on the mantel is incised with the last sentence from a letter President John Adams wrote his wife from the new President's House in 1800 -"I pray Heaven to bestow the best of blessings on this house and all that shall hereafter inhabit it. May none but honest and wise men ever rule under this roof."

Abraham Lincoln by George P.A. Healy

- Healy painted six presidential portraits in the late 1850s and is the most represented artist in the White House collection. He submitted this painting to an 1869 competition for an official portrait of Lincoln, but it was not selected by the government.
- Purchased by the family, it was bequeathed to the White House by the widow of Robert Todd Lincoln.

THE ENTRANCE HALL, THE CROSS HALL, AND THE GRAND STAIRCASE

The Entrance Hall

- Overlooking Pennsylvania Avenue, this hall serves as a grand foyer for the official reception rooms on the State Floor.
- During events, the United States Marine Band often performs in this location.
- In 1985 Prince Charles and Princess Diana visited the White House for a gala dinner hosted by President Reagan and his wife Nancy.
 - Guests included Eastwood, John Travolta, Tom Selleck and singer Neil Diamond as well as politicians and businessmen.
 - During the gala, First Lady Nancy Reagan took John Travolta aside and informed him that Princess Diana wanted a dance.
 - The subsequent photographs of the glamorous Princess and romantic lead of such movies as Saturday Night Fever and Grease, made the front page of every newspaper and magazine in the world, see photo (5).
 - For John Travolta who had been experiencing the rejections of the film industry, this spot light on him and the fact that Princess Diana would consider him important enough to wish to dance with him, revived his self-belief in himself. He attributes his resultant soaring film career to this moment in his life.

The Cross Hall

- Behind the Entrance Hall is the central corridor that extends between the East Room and the State Dining Room.
- In 1837, to conserve heat in the state rooms, a glass screen was installed between the columns. In 1882, it was replaced by a screen of Tiffany stained glass.
- Removed in 1902 and sold at auction, the Tiffany screen is believed to have been destroyed in a fire in 1923.

The Grand Staircase

- This staircase leads from the State Floor to the Second Floor and is used primarily for ceremonial occasions.
- On the lowest landing, President Ronald Reagan took his second oath of office on January 20, 1985.

Portraits

- Portraits of the most recent former presidents traditionally are hung in the Entrance Hall, the Cross Hall, and along the Grand Staircase.
 - The portrait of Bill Clinton by Simmie Knox, 2001, shows him in the Oval Office.
 - The 1994 portrait of George H.W. Bush by Herbert Abrams depicts him in his Residence Office with a painting he much admired, George Healy's The Peacemakers, in the background.
 - The Kennedy portrait was painted posthumously. He is looking down because the artist said he could not accurately paint the eyes of a subject without actually seeing them in person.

Date Stone

- On the floor between the columns is a stone commemorating White House construction projects.
 - 1792 (the laying of the White House cornerstone)
 - 1817 (the re-opening of the White House after the 1814 burning during the War of 1812)
 - 1902 (the Theodore Roosevelt renovation).
 - 1952 Truman renovation

Grand Piano

- This piano was the 300,000th manufactured by Steinway & Sons
- Was designed especially for the White House in 1938.
- It replaced another Steinway, the 100,000th produced in 1903, now at the Smithsonian Institution.
- Gilded scenes of American music and dance appear on the case - a New England barn dance, a cowboy playing his guitar, the Virginia reel, two dancing field hands..
- The piano is supported by three large gilded eagles in the Art Moderne style.
