Subject: What Columbus Must Have Worried About

I have been getting tired and concerned with the Wall Street types who are preaching doom, in some cases probably to promote their own bets, and whose voices have recently been a rising crescendo. I have my own moments of doubt, of course, but I have long believed that the world we are living in is so different from the world of my youth that we must factor that into our forward thinking. I hope you find this piece interesting and even useful!
