Sent: Tue, 30 Jun 2009 14:02:47 -0400
From: "Hutt, Patricia A." <patricia_a._hutt@oa.eop.gov>
To: [redacted]
Bcc:
Subject: Lunch_on_the_Skyscraper
Lunch_on_the_Skyscraper.pps

P6/b(6)

LUNCH ON THE SKYSCRAPER

‘ONCE UPON A TIME IN AMERICA’
CIRCA 1930

The photos in this presentation, are real.
Some of them are historical photographs and were taken by Charles Ebbets in the early 1930's.

Most of them depict daily scenes of the workers who participated in the construction of the skyscrapers between 1920 and 1935.

As you will see, the safety measures were somewhat peculiar and the photos were done trying to play down that situation.

I title the first of the following photographs
"Lunch atop a Skyscraper" or
"Lunch at the top of a skyscraper"

The author is Charles C. Ebbets.
He was one of the more solid photographers in the world.

The photographs were taken in New York,
on September 29th 1932,
and published in the New York Herald Tribune in the Sunday supplement of the Oct. 2nd of that year.
They were taken on the 69 floor of the 70 that comprise the GE building in Rockefeller Center.

This is Charles Ebbets while taking some of these photographs

And this one, is a photo titled "Resting on the girder" taken in 1932

Many of these images comprise the Bettmann file, founded by Otto Bettmann in 1936.

It contains a collection of 11 million photographs and includes some of the best historical images of the United States.

At the present time the file belongs to the Corbis company, property of Bill Gates.

18354

The New York Times

The music is "Deborah's Theme" by Ennio Morricone.

The Theme is from the movie "Once Upon a time in America" by Sergio Leone

