On health care: I think everyone is afraid that we've conceded too much. People want a public option at least we want the precriptions to be imported from other countries. On national security: why not let the unemployed be trained to be border security. It would be like the ccc service. The billion dollar virtual fence is not working. ON the stimilus: We need bullet trains. We need to get back into the 21st century. We need to see the money being spent. Create jobs in the energy field. We are behind already. On Security: Why not let someone like Bill Gates create a program to put all the intel info together and automately flag something wrong, so that the people would be put on the no fly list. Close the internets to radical clerics.
