CAPITOL VISIT TO CONGRESSIONAL DEMOCRATS REGARDING THE AFFORDABLE CARE ACT

DATE: January 4, 2017
LOCATION: Capitol Visitor Center, U.S. Capitol
TIME: 9:25 – 10:35 AM
From: Amy Rosenbaum and Kristie Canegallo

I. PURPOSE

YOU will address House and Senate Democratic Members tomorrow, providing remarks and then taking questions. Your remarks will be an opportunity to express appreciation for all that we have achieved together for the American people over the past eight years and share your thoughts about the hope that exists for our Nation going forward. As desired in your remarks and in your response to questions, you can focus in particular on the strategy and key messages for the debate surrounding the Affordable Care Act (ACA) and urge Members to carry on the work we began together. Following the Caucus, Leaders Pelosi and Schumer will do a joint press conference laying out their messaging: “GOP plan to cut Medicare, Medicaid and ACA would make America sick again – from affordable care to chaos”.

On the ACA, we have three primary messages for the Caucus – the second and third are intended to surface messages that Members can repeat:

- Thank you for your partnership, in particular on health care, and thank you for what you will continue to do.
- Real lives and economic losses are at stake in the health care fight, and “repeal and delay” causes huge problems.
- This is a fight we can win – derailing the ACA “repeal and delay” vote and instead building on what works is possible with a united Caucus that listens to the American people.

You articulating what this law means beyond the partisan rhetoric and conveying confidence in Democrats’ ability to defend and build on the progress made to date will help unify Democrats and keep moderates and those up in 2018 strong. Compelling with some Members and groups has been the point that preventing the ACA repeal and delay vote would be a significant victory for the larger progressive community, proving their power despite their minority status and paving the way for future successes on a wider range of issues. There are strong moral, policy, and political arguments for continuing to be the party that champions health care and fighting against the Republican “repeal and delay” way ahead.

II. UPDATE

On Tuesday, Congressional Republicans introduced a joint budget resolution, setting up the first of the three votes on ACA repeal and replace outlined in the memo this weekend (and reattached here). The Senate is likely to conclude consideration of the resolution by the end of next week, and the House will follow suit shortly thereafter, possibly on Friday of next week. Factoring in the debate time and votes needed for the reconciliation and any possible conference report, it will be possible for the Senate to complete action on the statutory repeal (the second vote) by the February recess. This timeline, however, could be disrupted by disagreements among Congressional Republicans and between Congressional Republicans and the new Administration, in particular, on whether it is possible to vote first on repeal and then delay the replace vote. For example, today, Senator Paul published an op-ed in which he made the case for voting on a replacement at the same time as repeal. "If Congress fails to vote on a replacement at the same time as repeal," Paul writes, "the repealers risk assuming the blame for the continued unraveling of Obamacare." Also today, the American Medical Association sent a letter to the Hill calling for details of the replacement before the repeal vote.

III. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS AND PARTICIPANTS

- YOU will depart the White House for the U.S. Capitol with Secretary Sylvia Burwell, Amy Rosenbaum, Kristie Canegallo and Joshua Earnest.
- YOU arrive at the U.S. Capitol via the House Carriage Entrance and are greeted by House Sergeant at Arms Paul Irving and Senate Sergeant at Arms Frank Larkin, Democratic Leader Chuck Schumer (D-NY) and Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi (D-CA). – Open Press
- YOU are led to room CVC-208 in the Capitol Visitor Center. Representative Joe Crowley (D-NY) will meet YOU outside the room. There are two flights of stairs downward on this route. – Open Press
- YOU greet Congressional Leadership in CVC-208 for a brief clutch (5 minutes). White House, Senate, and House photographers will document. – Closed Press

2017 Calendar: Affordable Care Act

January:

- January 3-4: Senate introduces its FY 2017 budget resolution
- January 4: Democratic Caucus
- January 5: HHS brief on Americans with pre-existing conditions
- January 6: New England Journal of Medicine article; Vox Event at the Blair House
- January 10-11: Senate and potentially House vote on budget resolution
- January 11: HHS brief on the number of Marketplace enrollees nationwide
- January 11-12: HHS brief on ACA benefits for people with substance use disorders
- January 15: Democratic Members' rallies supporting the ACA and Medicare; deadline for February 1 coverage.
- January 18 (tentative): HELP Committee confirmation hearing for Tom Price for HHS
- January 31: End of 2017 open enrollment

February:

- HHS announces enrollment for 2017
- Earliest House could pass its reconciliation bill to repeal the ACA
- Senate could pass its reconciliation bill to repeal the ACA on February 17 (before its recess)
- Issuer earnings calls for 2016 – early indication of the stability of the Marketplace and issuers intentions for 2018
- February 21: Deadline for House's brief in House v Burwell case on cost sharing subsidies

March:

- Congress must finish FY 2017 budget
- Republicans hope to complete passage of the reconciliation repeal bill

April:

- FY 2018 budget resolution: would have to renew ACA instructions if the reconciliation bill has not yet passed

May through July:

- Deadline for issuers to apply for 2018; may be early announcement of withdrawals
- Development and potential passage of "replace" bill; if not done by August recess, difficult to implement in 2019 since rules would have to be proposed and finalized in 6 months
- Key delivery system reforms take effect without change (e.g., mandatory bundled payments for cardiac care)

August through October:

- Issuers announce participation and rates for 2018 and send cancellation notices

CONGRESSIONAL SUPPLEMENT: DEMOCRATIC CAUCUS

From: Amy Rosenbaum

All Members are members of the Democratic Caucus leadership

Frank Larkin, Senate Sergeant-at-Arms

Frank Larkin has served as the 40th Sergeant at Arms of the United States Senate since his appointment to that post by Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell on January 6, 2015. Larkin assumed his office as Sergeant at Arms after a distinguished career in both the public and private sector, including work in law enforcement, national security, information technology and cyber security. He previously served in several posts at the United States Department of Defense and the United States Secret Service, and in the United States Navy SEALs.

Mr. Paul Irving, House Sergeant-at-Arms

The Honorable Paul D. Irving was sworn in as the Sergeant at Arms of the U.S. House of Representatives on January 17, 2012, during the 2nd session of the 112th Congress. He is the thirty-sixth person to hold this post since the House of Representatives first met in New York City in 1789. Prior to this, Mr. Irving was an Assistant Director of the U.S. Secret Service from 2001 to 2008, serving as a Special Agent with the Secret Service for 25 years.

Senator Charles Schumer, D-NY, Senate Minority Leader and Chair of the Senate Democratic Conference

Planning to attend

Senator Schumer was first elected to the Senate in 1998. Since 2010, Senator Schumer has served as the Chairman of the Senate Democratic Policy and Communications Center in addition to being the Vice Chairman of the Democratic Caucus. He is a member of the following committees: Rules and Administration (Ranking Member); Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs; Finance; Judiciary; Joint Printing; and Joint Library. Prior to serving in the Senate, he served in the House of Representatives from 1981 to 1999 and in the New York State Assembly from 1975 to 1980.

- ACA: Senator Schumer is laser focused on uniting the caucus in opposition to the Republicans repeal agenda. He believes that the best way to do this is by focusing on protecting Medicare and Medicaid, as well as attacking Republicans for bypassing regular order. We continue to remind him about the 20 million Americans who've gained coverage through the Marketplaces and preserving that coverage. He wants to pin every failure of the health care system to Republicans. It will be important to reinforce the practical implications of repeal. This upcoming debate could not be more important: the progress we have made in improving the health system could be rolled back, and literally repealing the law could put lives at risk.

Senator Richard Durbin, D-IL, Minority Whip

Planning to attend

Senator Durbin was first elected to the Senate in 1996. He has served as the Senate Democratic Whip since 2005. He is a member of the following committees: Appropriations; Judiciary; and Rules and Administration. Prior to serving in the Senate, he served in the House of Representatives from 1983 to 1997.

Senator Patty Murray, D-WA, Assistant Democratic Leader

Planning to attend

Senator Murray was first elected to the Senate in 1992. She is a member of the following committees: Budget; Appropriations; Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions (Ranking Member); and Veterans' Affairs. Prior to serving in the Senate, she served in the Washington State Senate from 1988 to 1993.

- ACA: Senator Murray will likely play a significant role in coordinating the caucus and directing Senator Schumer. Since she is in leadership, as a perch as the Ranking Member of the HELP Committee, and has been the Chair of the Budget Committee, she is involved in nearly every conversation about repeal. This upcoming debate could not be more important: the progress we have made in improving the health system could be rolled back, and literally repealing the law could put lives at risk.

Senator Tammy Baldwin, D-WI, Secretary of the Senate Democratic Conference

Planning to attend

Senator Baldwin was elected to the Senate in 2012. She is a member of the following committees: Appropriations; Budget; Health, Education, Labor and Pensions; and Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs. Prior to serving in the Senate, she served in the U.S. House of Representatives from 1999 to 2012 and in the Wisconsin State House of Representatives from 1993-1999. Baldwin is the first openly gay Member of the Senate.

Senator Amy Klobuchar, D-MN, Chair of the Democratic Steering and Outreach Committee

Planning to attend

Senator Klobuchar was elected to the Senate in 2006. She serves as Chair of the Democratic Steering and Outreach Committee. She is a member of the following committees: Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry; Judiciary; Commerce, Science, and Transportation; Rules and Administration; and Joint Economic. Prior to serving in the Senate, she served as Prosecutor of Hennepin County from 1999 to 2007.

Senator Bernard Sanders, I-VT, Senate Chair of Democratic Outreach

Planning to attend

Senator Sanders was elected to the Senate in 2006. He is a member of the following committees: Budget (Ranking Member); Energy and Natural Resources; Environment and Public Works; Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions; and Veterans' Affairs. Prior to serving in the Senate, he served in the House of Representatives from 1991 to 2007 and as Mayor of Burlington from 1981 to 1989. Sanders was a 2016 presidential candidate.

Senator Debbie Stabenow, D-MI, Chair of the Democratic Policy and Communications Committee

Planning to attend

Senator Stabenow was first elected to the Senate in 2000. She is a member of the following committees: Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry (Ranking Member); Budget; Energy and Natural Resources; and Finance. Prior to serving in the Senate, she served in the House of Representatives from 1997 to 2001, in the Michigan State Senate from 1991 to 1994, and in the Michigan State House of Representatives from 1979 to 1990.

- ACA: Senator Stabenow will be taking over the help of the Democratic Policy Committee, so she will play a role in disseminating messaging, talking points, and background information to the caucus.

Senator Mark Warner, D-VA, Vice Chair of the Democratic Conference

Planning to attend

Senator Warner was elected to the Senate in 2008. He is a member of the following committees: Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs; Budget; Finance; Rules and Administration; and Select Intelligence. Prior to serving in the Senate, he served as Governor of Virginia from 2002 to 2006. Before entering into politics, Warner founded Columbia Capital, a venture capital firm through which he founded or invested in numerous technology and telecommunications companies, including Nextel.

Senator Elizabeth Warren, D-MA, Vice Chair of the Democratic Conference

Planning to attend

Senator Warren was elected to the Senate in 2012. She is a member of the following committees: Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs; Health, Education, Labor and Pensions; Environment and Public Works; and Special Aging. Prior to serving in the Senate, she served as the Special Advisor for the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau from 2010 to 2011 and was the Chairperson of the Congressional Oversight Panel from 2008 to 2010.

Senator Chris Van Hollen, D-MD

Planning to attend

Senator Van Hollen was elected to the Senate in 2016. Van Hollen was elected in 2002 to the House of Representatives and was Ranking Member of the Budget Committee. He was also an associate member of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus. Prior to serving in the House, he was a member of the Maryland House of Delegates from 1991 to 1995 and the Maryland State Senate from 1995 to 2003.

Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-CA

Planning to attend

Leader Pelosi serves the 12th Congressional District of California, which encompasses the entire city of San Francisco and portions of South San Francisco.

Leader Pelosi was elected in 1987 in a special election. She was the first woman to become Speaker of the House, serving in the position from 2007 to 2011. She was also a Democratic National Committeewoman from California from 1976 to 1996.

Representative Steny Hoyer, D-MD, Democratic Whip

Planning to attend

Representative Hoyer serves the 5th Congressional District of Maryland, which is comprised of the southwestern corner of the state, including Bowie, College Park, and Waldorf, as well as the coastal areas along the Chesapeake Bay.

Representative Hoyer was elected in 1981 in a special election. He was Majority Leader from 2006 to 2010 and served in the House as Minority Whip from 2002 to 2006, and again since December 2010. Prior to serving in the House, he was a member of the Maryland Board for Higher Education from 1978 to 1981 and the Maryland Senate from 1966 to 1978.

Representative James Clyburn, D-SC, Assistant Democratic Leader

Representative Clyburn serves the 6th Congressional District of South Carolina, which is comprised of a large southern portion of the state bordering Georgia, including the cities of Columbia and North Charleston, as well as parts of rural Florence and Orangeburg counties.

Representative Clyburn was elected in 1992 and is the Assistant Minority Leader. He is a member of the Financial Services Committee (Ranking Member of the Housing and Insurance Committee). He is also National Mobilization Chair of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee and a member of the Congressional Black Caucus. Prior to serving in the House, he was South Carolina Human Affairs Commissioner from 1974 to 1993.

- SCRC Appointment. Representative Clyburn may still have questions about the appointment process and could raise his desire for you to appoint a candidate that he cares deeply about to the Southern Crescent Regional Commission, a political appointment. Clyburn appears to be under the impression that the Commission is a fixed-term appointment that could extend beyond your Administration. However, this is not the case. In addition, in December, the White House declined to appoint Clyburn's candidate due to time and bandwidth constraints on the White House to appoint a candidate so very late in the Administration. PPO and OLA have attempted to provide clarity to Clyburn and his staff. However, it appears the office is not pleased with the White House's decision.

Representative Joseph Crowley, D-NY, Chair of Democratic Caucus

Representative Crowley serves the 14th Congressional District of New York, which is comprised of diverse enclaves in the Bronx and Queens, including the neighborhoods of College Point, the East Bronx, and Jackson Heights.

Representative Crowley was elected in 1998 and is a member of the Ways and Means Committee. He is also DC Finance Chair of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, Vice Chair of the Democratic Caucus, an associate member of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus and a member of the Democratic Steering and Policy Committee. Prior to serving in the House, he was a member of the New York Assembly from 1987 to 1999.

Representative Linda Sánchez, D-CA, Vice-Chair of Democratic Caucus

Representative Sánchez represents the 38th Congressional District of California, which is comprised of a portion of southeastern Los Angeles County, including Montebello, Norwalk, Pico River, and Whittier.

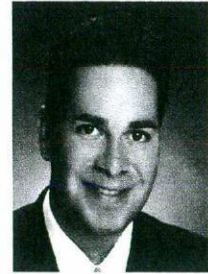

Representative Sánchez was elected in 2002. She is Ranking Member of the Ethics Committee and a member of the Ways and Means Committee and the Select Committee on Benghazi. She is Chair of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, an associate member of the Congressional Asian Pacific American Caucus and a member of the Congressional Progressive Caucus. Prior to serving in the House, she was Executive Secretary and Treasurer for the Orange County Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO.

Representative Ben Ray Luján, D-NM, Chair of Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee

Representative Luján serves the 3rd Congressional District of New Mexico, which is comprised of the entire northern portion of the state, including Clovis, Farmington, Los Alamos, and Santa Fe.

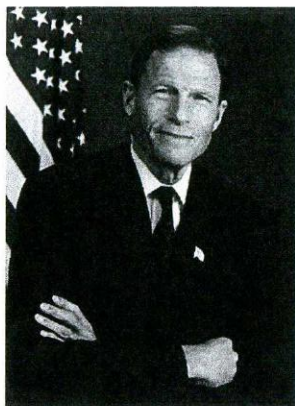

Representative Luján was elected in 2008 and a member of the Energy and Commerce Committee. He is Chair of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee and a member of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus. Prior to serving in the House, he was a member of the New Mexico District 3 Public Regulation Commission from 2005 to 2008.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE FAREWELL PARADE AND TRIBUTE

DATE: January 4, 2017
LOCATION: Joint Base Myer-Henderson Hall
TIME: 2:30 – 3:45 PM
FROM: ASSISTANT TO THE PRESIDENT FOR NATIONAL SECURITY AFFAIRS

I. PURPOSE

The Secretary of Defense, the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the U.S. military will pay tribute to you in a final full-honors parade. It is a U.S. military tradition to conduct a farewell parade in honor of the departing Commander-in-Chief, as well as senior Department of Defense officials. The farewell tributes are held on the Fort Myer side of Joint Base Myer-Henderson Hall. The U.S. Army's oldest infantry unit, the 3rd U.S. Infantry (The Old Guard) has been stationed at Fort Myer since 1948. Although the other Armed Forces Honor Guards (Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps, and Coast Guard) are stationed at other Washington, D.C.-area bases, Fort Myer's Conmy Hall seats 1,200 people and has a large ceremony floor, thus providing the ideal location for these types of ceremonies.

II. PARTICIPANTS

- The Vice President
- Ash Carter, Secretary of Defense
- Will Carter, Son of Secretary Carter
- General Joe Dunford, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff
- Ellyn Dunford, Wife of General Dunford
- Approximately 700 distinguished guests

III. PRESS PLAN

- YOU move to off-stage announce.
- YOU and the official party are seated on a reviewing stand. The parade takes place on the floor of Conmy Hall in front of the reviewing stand.
- The Vice President moves to the reviewing stand unannounced.
- VOG announces General Dunford and Secretary Carter to the reviewing stand.
- VOG announces YOU to the reviewing stand as Hail to the Chief plays, followed by a 21-gun salute.
- Military District of Washington staff escort YOU to YOUR toe mark in front of the reviewing stand.
- The Commander of the Troops informs YOU that the Honor Guard is prepared for inspection and salutes YOU (Note: YOU return the salute).
- YOU participate in a walking inspection of the troops, escorted by the Commander of the Troops (Note: YOU salute as YOU pass the colors).
- Inspection concludes at YOUR toe mark in front of the reviewing stand. The Commander of the Troops informs YOU that the inspection is complete and salutes YOU (Note: YOU return the salute).
- YOU return to the reviewing stand and take YOUR seat.
- The Fife and Drum Corps execute the Troop in Review.
- Following the Troop in Review, YOU stand for the Advancing of the Colors.
- Following the Advancing of the Colors, YOU remain standing for the playing of the National Anthem.
- Following the National Anthem, YOU move to YOUR toe mark in front of the reviewing stand.
- Secretary Carter moves off the reviewing stand and presents YOU with the Department of Defense Medal for Distinguished Public Service. VOG reads the citation as Secretary Carter pins the award on YOUR jacket.
- YOU and Secretary Carter move back to the reviewing stand and take YOUR seats.
- VOG announces General Dunford to the podium.
- General Dunford delivers brief remarks and introduces Secretary Carter.
- Secretary Carter delivers brief remarks and introduces YOU.
- YOU move to the podium and deliver remarks.
- Following remarks, YOU return to YOUR seat.
- Honor Guard executes the Pass in Review.
- The Armed Forces Band plays the Service Medley of songs for each branch of the Armed Forces.
- Band departs and the Commander of Troops informs Secretary Carter that the ceremony has concluded.
- YOU, the Vice President, Secretary Carter, and General Dunford depart stage.

Franco Harris

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Franco Harris (born March 7, 1950) is a former American football fullback who played in the National Football League (NFL) for the Pittsburgh Steelers and Seattle Seahawks.

In the 1972 NFL Draft he was picked up by the Pittsburgh Steelers in the first round, the 13th selection overall. His selection by the team was considered controversial at the time, as many thought the team would select his Penn State teammate, Lydell Mitchell. (Mitchell was later selected by the Baltimore Colts in the draft.) He played his first 12 years in the NFL with the Steelers; his 13th and final year (1984) was spent with the Seattle Seahawks. He was inducted into the Pro Football Hall of Fame in 1990.^[1]

Early life

Harris was born in Fort Dix, New Jersey. His African-American father served in World War II; his mother was a "war bride" from Italy.^[2] Harris graduated from Rancocas Valley Regional High School in Mount Holly Township, New Jersey in 1968^[3] and then attended Penn State University. While playing for Penn State's Nittany Lions, Harris served primarily as a blocker for the All-American running back Lydell Mitchell, though he amassed 2,002 yards rushing (21st in PSU history) with 24 touchdowns and averaged over 5 yards per carry, while also catching 28 passes for 352 yards and another touchdown. He led the team in scoring in 1970.

Career history

- Pittsburgh Steelers (1972–1983)
- Seattle Seahawks (1984)

Career highlights and awards

- 4× Super Bowl champion (IX, X, XIII, XIV)
- Super Bowl MVP (IX)
- 9× Pro Bowl (1972–1980)
- First-team All-Pro (1977)

- 1969: 115 carries for 643 yards and 10 TD. 12 catches for 189 yards.^[4]
- 1970: 142 carries for 675 yards and 8 TD. 6 catches for 66 yards.
- 1971: 123 carries for 684 yards and 6 TD. 10 catches for 97 yards and 1 TD.

Professional career

In his first season with the Steelers (1972), Harris was named the league's Rookie of the Year by both The Sporting News and United Press International. In that season he gained 1,055 yards on 188 carries, with a 5.6 yards per carry average. He also rushed for 10 touchdowns and caught 3 touchdown passes. He was popular with Pittsburgh's large Italian-American population: his fans dubbing themselves "Franco's Italian Army" and wore army helmets with his number on them.

In his 13 professional seasons, Harris gained 12,120 yards on 2,949 carries, a 4.1 yards per carry average, and scored 91 rushing touchdowns. He caught 307 passes for 2,287 yards, a 7.4 yards per reception average, and 9 receiving touchdowns. Harris's 12,120 career rushing yards rank him 12th all time in the NFL, while his 91 career rushing touchdowns rank him 10th all time tied with Jerome Bettis.^[5]

Harris was chosen for 9 consecutive Pro Bowls (from 1972 through 1980), and was All-Pro in 1977. Harris rushed for more than 1,000 yards in 8 seasons, breaking a record set by Jim Brown. The tandem running package of Harris and Rocky Bleier combined with a strong defense to win four Super Bowls in the 1975, 1976, 1979, and 1980 seasons. In 1975 he was the Most Valuable Player of Super Bowl IX; in that game he rushed for 158 yards and a touchdown on 34 carries for a 16-6 win over the Minnesota Vikings. Harris was the first African American as well as the first Italian-American to be named Super Bowl MVP. Harris was a major contributor for the Steelers in all of their first four Super Bowl wins. His Super Bowl career totals of 101 carries for 354 yards are records and his 4 career rushing touchdowns are tied for the second most in Super Bowl history.

Harris claims he extended his career and thus his contribution to the team's objectives (including four Super Bowl victories) by avoiding unnecessary contact.^[6]

Following the 1983 season, Harris and Walter Payton were both closing in on Jim Brown's NFL rushing record, and Harris had asked the Rooney family for a pay raise. The Rooney family refused, believing that Harris was on the downside of his career, and Harris threatened to hold out. The Steelers released Harris in training camp in 1984, which would start similar patterns years later with Rod Woodson and Alan Faneca both asking similar demands before leaving in free agency. (Free agency, as it is seen today in the NFL, was not in existence at the time of Harris's release.) Harris would sign with the Seattle Seahawks during the 1984 season^[7] and would play eight games with the team, earning only 170 yards before retiring (192 yards short of Jim Brown's record). Harris and the Rooneys reconciled after Harris retired; in 2006, during pre-game ceremonies for Super Bowl XL (the Steelers' second SB appearance – and first championship – since his retirement) honoring the MVPs of the previous 39 games, Harris waved a Terrible Towel while being introduced, much to the delight of the overwhelmingly pro-Steeler crowd. While the Steelers no longer officially retire uniform numbers, they have not reissued his number 32 since he left the team, and it is generally understood that no Steelers player will ever wear that number again.

- 2× Second-team All-Pro (1972, 1975)
- NFL Man of the Year (1976)
- NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year (1972)

Pro Football Hall of Fame (<http://www.profootballhof.com/hof/member.aspx?PlayerId=89>)

Harris was a key player in one of professional football's most famous plays, dubbed "The Immaculate Reception" by Pittsburgh sportscaster Myron Cope. In a 1972 playoff game, the Oakland Raiders were leading the Steelers 7-6 with 22 seconds to play when a Terry Bradshaw pass was deflected away from intended receiver John "Frenchy" Fuqua right as defender Jack Tatum arrived to tackle Fuqua. Harris snatched the ball just before it hit the ground and ran it into the endzone to win the game. The Raiders challenged the touchdown, claiming that Fuqua had handled the ball before Harris, which would invalidate the score because at that time it was against the rules for two offensive receivers to touch the ball. The Steelers maintained that the ball had touched Tatum instead.

According to a recounting by the Pro Football Hall of Fame, the film of the play is inconclusive.^[8] Raiders linebacker Phil Villapiano attempted to criticize Harris's achievement by stating that he was only in position to catch the ball because he was lazy, but replays show that Harris headed downfield when the Raiders forced Bradshaw out of the pocket, and can be clearly seen running before catching the deflected ball.

In 1999, he was ranked number 83 on The Sporting News' list of the 100 Greatest Football Players. In 2006, The Heinz History Center, home of the Western Pennsylvania Sports Museum, installed a life-size figure of Harris in the grand concourse of Pittsburgh International Airport. The statue is a recreation of Harris's "Immaculate Reception." He was inducted into the New Jersey Hall of Fame in 2011.

Post-football

Harris and Lydell Mitchell, successful college teammates at Penn State, now own Super Bakery, a company founded in 1990 to produce nutrition-oriented foods for schoolchildren. The business was renamed to RSuper Foods in 2006.^[9] RSuper foods produces the Super Donut that has been served to students at public schools in the eastern United States.^[10]

Harris and Mitchell also partnered in 1996 to rescue^[11] the Parks Sausage Company in Baltimore, the first African-American owned business to go public in the U.S.^[12]

Harris is also a paid representative for the Harrah's/Forest City Enterprises casino plan for downtown Pittsburgh.^[13] This association has earned him the tongue-in-cheek nickname, "Franco Harrahs".

On July 9, 2006, Harris made an appearance in the 2006 Taco Bell "All-Star Legends and Celebrity Softball Game" at PNC Park in Pittsburgh.

In August 2008, Harris attended the 2008 Democratic National Convention, in Denver, Colorado, as part of the Pennsylvania delegation.^[14] Harris voted for Obama on December 15, 2008, as one of Pennsylvania's 21 Democratic presidential electors.^{[15][16]}

In January 2011, Harris became co-owner of the Pittsburgh Passion.^[17]

In John Grisham's 2008 novel Playing For Pizza, the fullback of the Parma Panthers is nicknamed Franco as a tribute to his hero, Franco Harris, who he refers to as the "greatest Italian football player". This is a reference to Franco's mixed racial heritage.

Harris briefly worked with The Meadows Racetrack and Casino in 2011, before the casino suspended the relationship after Harris' comments in support of Joe Paterno, his coach while at Penn State, during the Jerry Sandusky sex abuse scandal.^[18]

Personal

Harris' brother Pete Harris, a collegiate All-American football player, died on August 15, 2006, of a heart attack at the age of 49.^[19]

On July 27, 2009 Harris' son, Franco "Dok" Harris, officially announced his candidacy for Mayor of the City of Pittsburgh. He placed second in the general election on November 3 of that year, receiving 25% of the vote.^[20]

Franco has served as part of the advisory board at Penn State's Center for Food Innovation, and in the Fall of 2009 was named a Conti Professor by Penn State's School of Hospitality Management.^[21]

Harris is involved in, and provides funding to, Penn Staters for Responsible Stewardship, a group aimed at ousting the members of Penn State's board of trustees.^[22]

Subject: Remarks by the President at Armed Forces Full Honor Review Farewell Ceremony

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate
Release

January 4, 2017

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
AT ARMED FORCES FULL HONOR REVIEW FAREWELL CEREMONY

Joint Base Myer-Henderson
Fort Myer, Virginia

3:21 P.M. EST

THE PRESIDENT: Thank you so much. Thank you. (Applause.) Thank you. Please be seated.

Well, good afternoon. It turns out these are easier when you're talking about somebody else. (Laughter.) At a moment like this, I think of all the times I've stood before our men and women in uniform. Commissioning our newest officers. Presiding over promotions. Presenting the Commander-in Chief's Trophy to -- the best football team in the military. I will let you argue over that one. (Laughter.) I have never taken sides.

Secretary Carter, I could not be more grateful for your gracious words, but more importantly, for your outstanding leadership, across, as you noted, more than three decades and nearly all of my presidency. You have always given me, Ash, your best strategic counsel. You've made sure that we were investing in innovation for the long term and a strong Force of the Future. As a physicist, Ash is also one of the few people who actually understands how our defense systems work. And I know that our troops and their families are immensely grateful for the compassion that you and Stephanie have shown them over the years. So to you and your family, on behalf of all of us, thank you for your outstanding service. (Applause.)

General Dunford, we've relied on you as Commandant of the Marine Corps, as our commander in Afghanistan, and now, as our nation's highest-ranking military officer. I thank you, and General Selva and the entire Joint Chiefs for the unvarnished military advice that you've always provided to me, for your dedication, for your professionalism, for your integrity. Because of you, because of this team, our Armed Forces are more integrated and better prepared across domains -- a truly Joint Force. Which is why, as a White Sox fan, I can overlook the fact that you love the Red Sox. (Laughter.) Moreover, on a personal note, outside of your professional qualities, you are a good man, and I am grateful to have worked with you. And thank Ellyn for allowing you to do this. (Applause.)

To members of Congress; Vice President Biden -- who, along with Jill, has known the love and the pride and the sacrifice of a military family. To Deputy Secretary Work; service secretaries; distinguished guests; dedicated civilians from across the Defense Department; my national security team; most of all, our men and women in uniform. I thank you for this honor, and for the warmth and respect that you've always shown me, the support that you've shown Michelle and our daughters during these past eight years.

And so, although I recognize that the formalities require me listening to praise directed in large part to me, I want to turn the tables -- I am still Commander-in-Chief, so I get to do what I want to do -- and I want to thank you. Of all the privileges of this office -- and there are many -- I will miss Air Force One, I will miss Marine One -- (laughter) -- but I can stand before you today and say that there has been no greater privilege, and no greater honor, than serving as the Commander-in-Chief of the greatest military in the history of the world. (Applause.)

When I took office, I noted that Presidents and those of you in uniform swear a similar oath -- to protect and defend this country and the Constitution that we cherish. By stepping forward and volunteering, by raising your right hand and taking that oath, each of you made a solemn pledge. You committed yourself to a life of service and of sacrifice. And I, in turn, made a promise to you, which, to the best of my abilities, I've tried to uphold every single day since, that I would only send you into harm's way when it is absolutely necessary, with the strategy, the well-defined goals, with the equipment and the support that you needed to get the job done. Because that's what you rightfully expect and that is what you rightfully deserve.

I made that pledge at a time when less than one percent of Americans wear the uniform. Fewer Americans know someone who serves. And as a result, a lot of Americans don't see the sacrifices you make on our behalf. But as Commander-in-Chief, I do. I've seen it when I looked into the eyes of young cadets, knowing that my decisions could very well send them into harm's way. I've seen it when I've visited the field -- at Bagram and Baghdad -- far from your families, risking your lives so that we can live ours safely and in freedom. And so you've inspired me, and I have been humbled by you consistently. And I want every American to know what I know -- through year after year after year of continuous military operations -- you have earned your place among the greatest generations.

The list of accomplishments that Joe and Ash so generously mentioned, they're because of you. It's what I tell my staff -- I'm the front man, but you're the ones doing the work. Because of you, our alliances are stronger, from Europe to the Asia Pacific. Because of you, we surged in Afghanistan, trained Afghan forces to defend their country, while bringing most of our troops home. Today our forces serve there on a more limited mission -- because we must never again allow Afghanistan to be used for a safe haven in attacks against our nation.

It's because of you -- particularly our remarkable Special Forces -- that the core al Qaeda leadership that attacked us on 9/11 has been decimated. Countless terrorist leaders, including Osama bin Laden, are gone. From South Asia to Africa, we have forged partnerships to go after terrorists that threaten us. Because of you, we are leading a global coalition against ISIL. These terrorists have lost about half of their territory. They are losing their leaders. Towns and cities are being liberated. And I have no doubt this barbaric terrorist group will be destroyed -- because of you.

You've shown that when it comes to fighting terrorism, we can be strong and we can be smart. Not by letting our forces get dragged into sectarian conflicts and civil wars, but with smart, sustainable, principled partnerships. That's how we've brought most of our troops home -- nearly 180,000 troops in Iraq and Afghanistan down to 15,000 today. That's how, even as we've suffered terrible attacks here at home, from Boston to Orlando, no foreign terrorist organization has successfully planned and executed an attack on our homeland these past eight years.

Because of you, the world has seen the awesome reach of American Armed Forces. In some of the first few weeks of my job, when Somali pirates took Captain Phillips, later on, when they kidnapped Jessica Buchanan, it was you that went in and you that risked everything, and you that brought these Americans home to their families.

The world has seen your compassion -- the help you deliver in times of crisis, from an earthquake in Haiti to the tsunami in Japan. Think of Ebola and the countless lives this Armed Forces saved in West Africa. It was you that set up the architecture and set the example for the world's response. One woman in West Africa said, "We thanked God first and then we thanked America second for caring about us." That's the difference you make -- you continue to make -- in the lives of people around the world.

As you know well, with service comes great sacrifice. And after 15 years of war, our wounded warriors bear the scars -- both seen and unseen. In my visits to their bedsides and rehab centers, I have been in awe, watching a wounded warrior grab his walker and pull himself up and, and through excruciating pain, take a step, and then another. Or hearing troops describe how they grappled with post-traumatic stress but summoned the strength to ask for help. As a military and as a nation, we have to keep supporting our resilient and incredibly strong wounded warriors as they learn to walk and run and heal. As they find new ways to keep serving our nation, they need to know that we still need your incredible talents. You've given so much to America, and I know you have more to give.

And then you have not seen the depths of true love and true patriotism until you've been to Dover, when our troops receive our fallen heroes on their final journey home; until you have grieved with our Gold Star families who've given a piece of their heart to our nation -- a son or a daughter, a father or mother, a husband or wife, a brother or a sister. Every one a patriot. Every single one of these American families deserves the everlasting gratitude and support of our entire nation.

Today, after two major ground wars, our Armed Forces have drawn down, and that is natural and it is necessary. And after reckless budget cuts of sequester, we need to keep improving the readiness, and the training, and modernizing our forces. So let me take this opportunity, while I still have it, to appeal to our friends from Congress who are here: We cannot go back to sequestration. There is a responsible way forward -- investing in America's strengths, our national security and our economic security. Investing in the reform and the equipment and support that our troops need, including the pay and the benefits, and the quality of life, and the education and the jobs that our troops and our veterans and all of your families deserve.

But make no mistake, even with the challenges of recent years -- and there have been challenges-- our allies and adversaries alike understand America's military remains, by far, the most capable fighting force on the face of the Earth. Our Army, tested by years of combat, is the best-trained and best-equipped land force on the planet. Our Navy is the largest and most lethal in the world -- on track to surpass 300 ships. Our Air Force, with its precision and reach, is unmatched. Our Marine Corps is the world's only truly expeditionary force. Our Coast Guard is the finest in the world.

And we're also the best because this military has come to welcome the talents of more of our fellow Americans. Service members can now serve the country they love without hiding who they are or who they love. All combat positions in our military are now open to women. And Joe Biden and I know that women are at least as strong as men. We're stronger for it. It's one of the reasons that our military stands apart as the most respected institution in our nation by a mile. (Applause.) The American people look up to you and your devotion to duty, and your integrity, and your sense of honor, and your commitment to each other.

One of my proudest achievements is that I have been able to, I think, communicate through the constant partisan haze, along with so many others, how special this institution is, and the esteem in which our military is held has held steady and constant and high throughout my presidency. And I'm very grateful for that. Because you remind us that we are united as one team. At times of division, you've shown what it means to pull together.

So my days as your Commander-in-Chief are coming to an end, and as I reflect on the challenges we have faced together and on those to come, I believe that one of the greatest tasks before our Armed Forces is to retain the high confidence that the American people rightly place in you. This is a responsibility not simply for those of you in uniform, but for those who lead you. It's the responsibility of our entire nation.

And so we are called to remember core principles: That we must never hesitate to act when necessary to defend our nation, but we must also never rush into war -- because sending you into harm's way should be a last and not first resort. It should be compelled by the needs of our security and not our politics. We need to remember that we must not give in to the false illusion of isolationism, because in this dangerous time, oceans alone will not protect us, and the world still seeks and needs our leadership as the one indispensable nation.

We have to remember that our military has to be prepared for the full spectrum of threats, conventional and unconventional, from 20th century-style aggression to 21st century-style cyber threats. And when we do go to war, we have to hold ourselves to high standards and do everything in our power to prevent the loss of innocent life, because that's what we stand for. That's what we should stand for. We have to remember that as we meet the threats of our time, we cannot sacrifice our values or our way of life -- the rule of law and openness and tolerance that defines us as Americans, that is our greatest strength and makes us a beacon to the world. We cannot sacrifice the very freedoms that we're fighting for.

And finally, in our democracy, the continued strength of our all-volunteer force also rests on something else -- a strong bond of respect and trust between those in uniform and the citizens that you protect and defend. At a time when too few Americans truly understand the realities or sacrifices of military service, at a time when many political leaders have not served, if some in the military begin to feel as though somehow they are apart from the larger society they serve those bonds can fray.

As every generation learns anew, freedom is not free. And so while less than 1 percent of Americans may be fighting our wars, 100 percent of Americans can do their parts -- at the very least -- to support you and your families. Everybody can do something -- every business, every profession, every school, every community, every state -- to reach out and to give back, and to let you know that we care, to help make the lives of our troops and your families just a little bit easier. Everybody can do something.

And that's why Michelle and Jill Biden have mobilized more Americans to honor and support you and your families through Joining Forces. And that's why, even after we leave the White House, Michelle and I intend to keep on looking for ways to help rally more of our fellow citizens to be there for you, just like you've always been there for us.

So we can't say it enough and we can't show it enough. Thank you for your patriotism. Thank you for your professionalism. Thank you for your character in representing the very best of the American spirit. Our nation endures -- we live free under the red, white and blue -- because of patriots like you.

It has been a privilege of a lifetime to serve with you. I have learned much from you. I'm a better man having worked with you. I'm confident that the United States and our Armed Forces will remain the greatest force for freedom and security that the world has ever known.

God bless you and your families. And God bless the United States of America. (Applause.)

Subject: Remarks by the President with Combatant Commanders and Joint Chiefs of Staff

THE WHITE HOUSE

Office of the Press Secretary

For Immediate
Release

January 4, 2017

REMARKS BY THE PRESIDENT
WITH COMBATANT COMMANDERS AND JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF

Cabinet Room

11:31 A.M. EST

THE PRESIDENT: Well, Happy New Year, everybody. I want to begin by thanking Ash Carter, our Secretary of Defense; General Joe Dunford and Vice Chair Paul Selva, and all of our commanders here.

The purpose of this meeting -- something I do on a regular basis -- is to allow me to hear directly from those who are charged with the most solemn responsibility of maintaining the finest fighting force that the world has ever known, and keeping the American people safe. It is in these meetings that we have been able to set broad strategy, identify areas where we have to improve, address the health of the force. And I can say to the American people that they are extraordinarily lucky and I am extraordinarily lucky to be served by such extraordinary patriots.

This will be my last meeting with them. And so part of my goal here is just to say thank you to them and let them know how much I appreciate the counsel, the advice, the leadership that they have consistently shown throughout my time in office.

But in addition to saying thank you, I will get their views on the fact that we still have a lot of active threats around the world and we still have men and women in harm's way around the world who are busy protecting our homeland and our vital interests and our allies. And we've got to make sure that during this transition period that there is a seamless passing of the baton, that there's continuity, and that any issues that still remain -- and obviously we still have major fights against ISIS in Mosul and in Syria; Afghanistan is still active -- that in all of these areas we are doing everything we can to make sure that the next President will benefit from the same kinds of outstanding advice and service that these people around the table have provided me.

So it has been, as I've said repeatedly, one of the greatest honors and privileges of being President serving as Commander-in-Chief to such outstanding people. And I couldn't have done it without all of you. And I know that my optimism about America going forward is in part because we have such an amazing military -- not only one that knows how to fight, but also knows how to uphold the values of rule of law and professionalism and integrity, and recognizes our constitutional structure and maintains strict adherence and respect for civilian authority and democratic practices in determining how we use the awesome force of the American military.

So I just want to say thank you to all of you.

And with that, we've got to do some work. All right? Thank you so much. I appreciate it.

The president emerged from his meeting with Senate Democrats around 11:10. He wasn't eager to take questions from the press. Among the shouted queries: "Mr. President, do you wish you had worked more closely with Republicans on Obamacare?"

The president didn't answer any of the shouted queries.

"I want to take a picture with the Senate Pages," he said. "They are the next generation.

He turned to the assembled young people. "All right let's get a good one," he said.

His motorcade began rolling at 11:17 am past bleachers for his successor's inaugural. Bunches of people lined the route taking pictures. One older African American man was saluting.

The motorcade pulled back into the White House at 11:22 am.

The pool was ushered into the Cabinet Room around 11:30 a.m. the president was meeting with the Joint Chiefs of Staff and his regional combatant commanders and his civilian secretaries. The president began by thanking Defense Secretary Ash Carter, Gen. Joe Dunford and Gen. Paul Silva.

He said the primary purpose of his meeting was to say thank you. The meeting was part of a regular gathering that Obama has with his military commanders. In these meetings, "we have been able to set broad strategy, identify areas where we have to improve and address the health of the force," Obama said.

"This will be my last meeting with them, so part of my goal here is just to say thank you," Obama said.

Obama alluded to the fact that "we still have a lot of active threats around the world and we still many American men and women in harm's way." He mentioned the battle for Mosul, the ongoing conflict in Syria and the fighting in Afghanistan.

He said a big part of his goal in the meeting will be to make sure that the next president will benefit from their "advise and service."

He also praised the military not only for their ability to fight, but their respect for "the rule of law, professionalism and integrity." He praised the military for its respect and recognition of "our constitutional structures"

POTUS attended an event honoring him billed as the Armed Forces Full Honor Review Farewell Ceremony at Joint Base Myer-Henderson Hall in Fort Myer, Va. (Note the corrected spelling of Myer from earlier reports.)

At the event, POTUS was joined on a reviewing stand by Gen. Joseph Dunford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff; Secretary of Defense Ash Carter; and Vice President Joe Biden. POTUS arrived on the stand at 2:44 p.m.

He made a tour of the hall and returned to the stand, where he was regaled by a marching band in colonial dress.

Following the presentation of colors and the national anthem, POTUS was presented with the Department of Defense Medal of Distinguished Service. A lengthy list of accolades was read as he accepted.

A presentation was made by Gen. Dunford, who praised a range of POTUS actions, including visits to Walter Reed "without fanfare or ceremony." Dunford then read several accolades from military personnel and offered praise for First Lady Michelle Obama.

Ash Carter was next to offer his praise. He recounted military achievements of the past eight years under Obama that were "consistent with our values." Carter also praised Obama's leadership and decision-making.

In his remarks, which stretched more than 20 minutes, POTUS said he wanted to "turn the tables" and offer praise for those he's served as commander in chief. He said there was "no greater privilege and no greater honor" than serving as commander in chief of the greatest military in the world.

"You have earned your place among the greatest generations," POTUS said.

Toward the end of his remarks, he touted the importance of the rule of law, openness and tolerance. "We cannot sacrifice the great freedoms that we're fighting for," he said.

"I am a better man having worked with you," POTUS said.

POTUS left the hall at 3:52 pm following more ceremonial marching.
