CONGRESSIONAL SUPPLEMENT: MEMBERS OF THE JOINT CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE ON INAUGURAL CEREMONIES (JCCIC)

From: Rob Nabors

The Joint Congressional Committee on Inaugural Ceremonies is comprised of the Senate Majority Leader, the Chairman and Ranking Members of the Senate Committee on Rules and Administration, the Speaker of the House, and the Majority and Minority Leaders of the House of Representatives. The JCCIC plans and executes all Inaugural activities at the United States Capitol.

Senator Charles Schumer, D-NY, Chairman of the JCCIC

Senator Schumer was first elected to the Senate in 1998. Prior to serving in the Senate, he served in the House of Representatives from 1981 to 1999 and in the New York State Assembly from 1975 to 1980. Senator Schumer is Chairman of the Rules Committee.

Mrs. Iris Schumer, Wife of Chairman Charles Schumer

The Senator and Mrs. Schumer have been married since 1980. They have two daughters, Allison and Jessica (who works for the NEC). Ms. Schumer currently serves as Vice Chancellor of the City University of New York and was a commissioner of the New York City Department of Transportation from 2000 to 2007. Ms. Schumer was named Alumna of the Year by the Brooklyn College Alumni Association in recognition of her commitment to the betterment of the community through her many professional and civic achievements.

Speaker John Boehner, R-OH

Speaker Boehner serves the 8th Congressional District of Ohio, which is comprised of a portion of southwestern Ohio and the suburbs north of Cincinnati and Dayton. It includes the cities of Hamilton and Springfield. He was elected to the House in 1990 and served as the Minority Leader from 2007 to 2011 and the Majority Leader from 2006 to 2007. Prior to serving in the House, he was a member of the Ohio House of Representatives from 1985 to 1990.

Mrs. Deborah Boehner, Wife of Speaker John Boehner

Deborah Boehner and John Boehner met in 1972 when they both worked at Marion Merrell Dow plant in Reading, Ohio. They were married in 1973 and have two daughters, Linda and Tricia. She maintains a career as a real estate agent.

Senator Harry Reid, D-NV, Senate Majority Leader

Senator Reid was first elected to the Senate in 1986 and has been the Senate Majority Leader since 2004. Prior to serving in the Senate, he served in the House of Representatives from 1983 to 1987, as Chair of the Nevada Gaming Commission from 1977 to 1981, and as Lieutenant Governor of Nevada from 1971 to 1975.

Mrs. Landra Reid, Wife of Majority Leader Harry Reid

The Senator and Mrs. Landra Reid have been married since 1959. They have one daughter, four sons, and sixteen grandchildren. Mrs. Reid has been an active leader of the Senate Spouses, the Congressional Club, and the Woman's National Democratic Club, and has led many efforts to preserve and add to the beautification of the United States Capitol. Mrs. Reid has long advocated for women's health issues. In honor of her dedication, the University of Nevada's School of Medicine established the Landra Reid Center for Women's Health.

- In September 2011, Mrs. Reid was diagnosed with Stage II breast cancer. She has recently completed chemotherapy and radiation treatment.

Majority Leader Eric Cantor, R-VA

Representative Cantor serves the 7th Congressional District of Virginia, which is comprised of the Shenandoah Valley, the northern and western sections of Richmond, and a small coastal area north of Newport News. It includes the cities of Glen Allen, Henrico, Mechanicsville, and Midlothian. He was elected in 2000, and as the Majority Leader he is the highest-ranking Jewish member of Congress in history. He is also a member of the Republican Study Committee. Prior to serving in the House, he was an attorney and a member of the Virginia House of Delegates from 1992 to 2001.

Mrs. Diana Fine Cantor, Wife of Majority Leader Cantor

Diana Fine Cantor and Eric Cantor were married in 1989 and have three children, Evan, Jenna, and Michael. She is a partner with Alternative Investment Management, LLC as well as Chair of the Virginia Retirement System. In her position with the Virginia Retirement System, she is a member of the Audit and Compliance Committee and maintains responsibility for the agency's annual audit and budget.

Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, D-CA

Leader Pelosi serves the 12th Congressional District of California, which encompasses the entire city of San Francisco. She was elected in 1987 in a special election and was the first woman to become Speaker of the House, serving in the position from 2007 to 2011. She was also a Democratic National Committeewoman from California from 1976 to 1996.

Mr. Paul Pelosi, Husband of Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi

Paul Pelosi and Nancy Pelosi were married in 1963. They have five children, Nancy Corinne, Christine, Jacqueline, Paul Jr., and Alexandra, as well as eight grandchildren. He owns and operates a real estate and venture capital investment and consulting firm in San Francisco titled Financial Leasing Services, Inc. Mr. Pelosi is also active in the arts, serving as a member of the Board of Trustees for the War Memorial and Performing Arts Center in San Francisco and occasionally in community theater.

Senator Mitch McConnell, R-KY, Senate Minority Leader

Senator McConnell was first elected to the Senate in 1984. He has been the Senate Republican Leader since 2006. Prior to serving in the Senate, he served as Judge-Executive of Jefferson County from 1978 to 1985.

- Though Senator McConnell is not a formal member of the JCCIC, the Senate Minority Leader and spouse have been traditionally included in JCCIC events, including the Inauguration Tea at the White House.

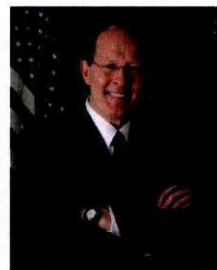

Secretary Elaine Chao, Wife of Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell

The Senator and Ms. Chao have been married since 1993. They have two daughters and one son from Senator McConnell's previous marriage. Ms. Chao served as Secretary of Labor from 2001 to 2009 and was the first Asian-American woman to be appointed to a cabinet-level position. She received the Woodrow Wilson Award for Public Service in 2011.

Senator Lamar Alexander, R-TN

Senator Alexander was first elected to the Senate in 2002. Prior to serving in the Senate, he served as Secretary of Education from 1991 to 1993, as President of the University of Tennessee from 1988 to 1991, and as Governor of Tennessee from 1979 to 1987. Senator Alexander is Ranking Member of the Rules Committee.

Mrs. Leslee “Honey” Buhler Alexander, Wife of Senator Lamar Alexander

The Senator and Mrs. Alexander have been married since 1969. They have four children, Drew, Leslee, Kathryn and Will, and four grandchildren. Mrs. Alexander is a founder of Bright Horizons Family Solutions, a provider of child care, back-up care, education, and work/life solutions. She has also served as a member and vice chairman of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting Board of Directors, having been nominated by President Reagan in 1987 and reappointed by President Bush in 1991.

National Day of Hope and Resolve, 2013

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

Four years ago, the American people came together to chart a new course through an uncertain hour. We chose hope over fear and hard work during hardship, confident that the age-old values that had guided our Nation through even its darkest days would be sufficient to meet the trials of our time.

Together, we have brought a decade of war toward a responsible end. We have saved our economy from collapse and fought for a future where everyone has an equal chance at opportunity. Millions of men, women, and children have made service their mission, reaffirming that America's greatest strength lies not in might or wealth, but in the bonds we share with one another.

Today, I have sworn an oath to preserve the fundamental freedoms and protections that are the lasting birthright of all who call this land home. I stand humbled by the responsibilities entrusted to me by our people, and I pray God's grace will see us through the tests we will surely face in the days ahead. But even as I assume once more the solemn duty of this Presidency, let us also remember that the oath I spoke shares much in common with those taken by every service member and every immigrant, and with the pledge we make before our flag. These are the words of America's citizens, and they represent our greatest hope.

On the other end of the National Mall where I have made my address, a preacher once told us "we cannot walk alone." Empowered by our faith in each other and united by the purpose that binds our fates as one, let us learn again that most enduring lesson. Let us renew our resolve to meet the challenges of our age together. And when our grandchildren reflect on the history we leave, let them say we did what was required of us, that our words were true to our Founders' dreams for a young Republic and our actions foretold the dawn of a new and brighter day.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, BARACK OBAMA, President of the United States of America, by the authority vested in me by the Constitution and laws of the United States, do hereby proclaim January 21, 2013, a National Day of Hope and Resolve. I call upon all Americans to join together in courage, in compassion, and in purpose to more fully realize the eternal promises of our founding and the more perfect Union that must remain ever within our reach.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this twenty-first day of January, in the year of our Lord two thousand thirteen, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and thirty-seventh.

HIGHLIGHTS OF PARADE PARTICIPANTS

Chinese American Community Center Folk Dance Troup, Delaware

The CACC is a non-profit organization that promotes the exchange and integration of Chinese and American cultures. The 23 girls ages 8 to 18 performed in 2009 in the Macy's Thanksgiving Parade. The troupe was the first group from Delaware to appear in the Macy's parade and the first Chinese folk dance troupe to appear in the Macy's parade since it started in 1924.

Ballou Senior High School "Majestic" Marching Knights: Washington, DC

Ballou Senior High School is a public School in Washington DC's Anacostia neighborhood. In 1995 Darrell Watson, a former Ballou student, took over the Ballou SHS Marching Band. Since then he has expanded the band from a mere 20 members to an 80 member nationally ranked marching band. The band has placed in the top three at the Home Depot "Battle of the Bands" in Carson, CA and in the 2005 and 2006 National High Stepping Marching Band competitions. In 2009 the band was selected to perform at the Macy's Day Parade.

Punahou High School Band and JROTC, Hawaii

President Obama's High School. In 2006, Punahou School was ranked as the "greenest" school in America. The student body is diverse, with student selection based on both academic and non-academic considerations. In 2008 and 2009, Punahou's sports program was ranked best in the country by Sports Illustrated. In 2009 Punahou was selected for the first time to march in the Inaugural Parade.

South Shore Drill Team, Illinois

South Shore Drill Team uses the performing arts to engage inner-city youth throughout their critical teenage years, mitigate the dangers of gangs, drugs, and violence, and guide members towards completing their education and becoming responsible citizens. The team draws young people from the South Side and the suburbs, with membership arising from 36 zip codes. It aims to keep kids off the streets and out of gangs and encourages them to graduate from high school. It had a 100 percent graduation rate this last spring. Famous for its performance in the Bud Billiken Parade, YOU saw the group perform at NATO in Chicago in 2012.

Isiserettes Drill & Drum Corp, Iowa

The Isiserettes are composed of both males and females ranging from the ages 7 to 18 years old. A regular fixture of the Obama for America Campaign in Iowa in 2007, the Isiserettes have traveled throughout the State of Iowa as well as the United States serving as ambassadors for the Black Community, the city of Des Moines and the state of Iowa. The team has been awarded numerous trophies and awards for their performances. They have been honored to receive the NAACP Community Service Award of Excellence and the KCCI TV-8 Leading the Way Award for Volunteer Service. This will be their second Inaugural Parade.

Letcher County Central Marching Band, Kentucky

In 2006 the Letcher County Schools received a VH1 Save the Music grants. At the start of the 2006 school year, there were approximately 35 students enrolled in instrumental music programs grades 5-12 in Letcher County. Today, through the hard effort of the schools and dedication of their Band Director, there are nearly 400 students in the program grades 5-12. Letcher County Schools was a recipient of a Kennedy Center Honorable Mention in 2007, the first such award for a public school in Kentucky, and a NAMM (National Association of Musical Merchants) Top 100 Communities for Music Education. Letcher County is one of the poorest counties in the nation, but they've come together around this band to help fund their trip to the nation's capital.

Navajo Nation Band, New Mexico

All band members are Navajo Descents. As Ambassadors of the Navajo Nation, the Band is an organization that provides quality and family musical entertainment to the General Public while maintaining cultural uniqueness. For this parade, band members will be dressed in dark blue velour shirts, white pants and moccasins. They will also accent their attire with turquoise and silver jewelry.

Miami University Marching Band, Ohio

YOU saw the Miami University Marching Band perform at a campaign event in Ohio on November 3rd, 2012. The Miami University Marching Band is at the heart of RedHawk Athletics at Miami University. Located in Oxford, Ohio, the MUMB has the excellence and experience of a great university band. They have been seen in the 2003 and 2011 Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade and across the nation at the 2004 Independence Bowl, the 2010 Go Daddy Bowl, the 2010 MAC Championship Football Game.

COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF INAUGURAL BALL

DATE: Monday, January 21, 2013
LOCATION: Washington Convention Center, Ballrooms ABC
TIME: 8:30 – 8:55 PM
From: Patty Padilla, Events Manager

I. PURPOSE

YOU and the First Lady will attend the Commander-In-Chief Inaugural Ball to honor America's military service members and their families. Invited guests include active duty and reserve service men and women, Medal of Honor recipients, Wounded Warriors and their spouses, among others. Tickets are being provided free of charge to invited attendees by the Presidential Inaugural Committee. Troops from around the world will also have the opportunity to join the celebration virtually.

At the 2013 Commander-in-Chief Ball and during events throughout the 2013 Inaugural, YOU and the First Lady will highlight the spirit of service and selflessness that we see every day from our U.S. military men and women. These events build on initiatives like Joining Forces to rally all Americans to recognize, honor and support our troops, our veterans, and our Blue Star and Gold Star families.

II. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS:

- YOU and FLOTUS arrive at the Washington Convention Center Ballroom.
- YOU and FLOTUS participate in a 17-click photoline with the Joint Chiefs of Staff & Spouses, Senior Enlisted Advisors and spouses, and (2) Military Dancers.
- YOU and FLOTUS will hold backstage with the Senior Enlisted Advisors of the five military services, and the selected military dancers.
- VOG introduces Senior Enlisted Advisors to stage; they will stand at attention behind YOU during YOUR remarks
- VOG introduces YOU to stage
- YOU deliver remarks and speak to Marines via satellite from Afghanistan – Camp Leatherneck/Helmand province
- YOU conclude YOUR remarks and introduce the First Lady
- FLOTUS proceeds to stage and greets YOU in the middle of the presidential seal for the first dance. YOU and the First Lady will dance for 30-40 seconds to "Let's Stay Together."
- VOG introduces YOUR military dancer partners onto stage
- YOU and FLOTUS dance with the selected active military members to "Stars and Stripes Forever."
- YOU and FLOTUS plus the active military dance partners depart stage
- YOU and FLOTUS proceed backstage to a photoline talent greet with:
 - Cast of Glee + Guests

- Marc Anthony + Guest
- Stevie Wonder + Guest

THE INAUGURAL BALL – HALLS ABC

DATE: January 21, 2013
LOCATION: Washington Convention Center, Halls ABC
TIME: 9:00 – 9:25 pm
From: Glynis Mason

I. PURPOSE

YOU and the First Lady will attend the Inaugural Ball to celebrate the 57th Presidential Inauguration. YOU and the First Lady will dance the first dance on an elevated stage before a crowd of approximately 22,000 people.

The Inaugural Ball will span two floors of the convention center (Halls D&E, and Halls ABC). The Inaugural Ball is a tradition that began on May 7, 1789, a week following the Inauguration of George Washington in New York City, when sponsors held a ball to honor the new President. The ball provides guests, particularly those who would otherwise not have access to private events or events reserved for friends, families, dignitaries and other elected officials, with an opportunity to celebrate YOUR Inauguration. As part of the celebration, there will be a buffet dinner, cocktails, and live bands for music.

II. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

- After the Commander-in-Chief's Ball, YOU and FLOTUS proceed to the first floor for a greet with the Presidential Inaugural Committee CEO Stephen Kerrigan and the Executive Director David J. Cusack.
- VOG announces YOU and FLOTUS to stage. "Hail to the Chief" is played as YOU and FLOTUS enter stage
- YOU and FLOTUS dance to "Let's Stay Together"
- YOU and FLOTUS depart
- YOU and FLOTUS participate in photo line

Alicia Keys

Throughout her career, Alicia Keys has won numerous awards, including 12 Grammys, and has sold over 35 million albums and 30 million singles worldwide. She has produced four studio albums, and appeared in the movie The Secret Life of Bees, which earned her a nomination at the NAACP Image Awards. Billboard magazine named her the top R&B songs artist of the 2000s decade, and VH1 included Keys on its list of the 100 Greatest Artists of All Time. She graduated as valedictorian from the Professional Performance Arts School of Manhattan at age 16.

Far East Movement

Far East Movement is an Asian-American hip hop quartet based in Los Angeles. The group formed in 2003 and consists of Kev Nish (Kevin Nishimura), Prohgress (James Roh), J-Splif (Jae Choung), and DJ Virman (Virman Coquia). Far East Movement's first claim to fame was their song "Round Round" featured in the Hollywood movie, The Fast and the Furious: Tokyo Drift, and its subsequent soundtrack, video game and DVD. Their single "Like a G6" hit number one on the Billboard Hot 100 Chart and on iTunes as well in late October 2010. Far East Movement also has the distinction of being the first Asian-American group to earn a #1 hit on the Billboard Hot 100 in the United States.

Katy Perry

Perry was born in California, the middle child of pastor parents. Raised in a deeply religious family, Perry's first experience of performing was singing in church. An executive at Columbia recommended Perry to the chairman of Virgin Records, Jason Flom, which resulted in her signing for Capitol Music Group. She recorded her second album, "One of the Boys" and in the Spring of 2008 released the lead single, the controversial "I Kissed a Girl". Other hit singles followed and the album was a commercial success. Perry was now established as a pop superstar and cemented her position with the release of her next album "Teenage Dreams", which spawned more huge hits including "California Gurls" and "Firework". YOU met her twice on the campaign.

Smokey Robinson

Robinson is an American R&B singer-songwriter, record producer, and former record executive. Robinson was the founder and front man of the popular Motown vocal group The Miracles, for which he also served as the group's chief songwriter and producer. Robinson led the group from its 1955 origins as The Five Chimes until 1972 when he announced a retirement from the stage to focus on his role as Motown's vice president. However, Robinson returned to the music industry as a solo artist the following year, later having solo hits such as "Baby That's Backatcha", "A Quiet Storm", "The Agony and the Ecstasy", "Cruisin'", "Being With You" and "Just to See Her". Following the sale of Motown Records in 1988, Robinson left Motown in 1990. He was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame in 1987.

Usher

Raymond is an American singer, songwriter, dancer, and actor. The RIAA ranks Usher as one of the best-selling artists in American music history, having sold over 23 million copies in the United States alone. To date, he has sold over 65 million records worldwide, making him one of the best selling music artists of all time. Usher has won numerous awards including seven Grammy Awards. Usher has attained nine Hot 100 number-one hits (all as a lead artist) and has attained eighteen Hot 100 top-ten hits.

Black Violin

In 2004, Black Violin joined superstar Alicia Keys on stage at the Billboard Music awards, delivering a performance that made the tastemakers and music enthusiasts of America sit up and take notice. Not long after, in 2005, the group was awarded the coveted title of Apollo Legend by the esteemed Apollo theatre in Harlem - Black Violin was on its way to the top. BV has worked with musicians as diverse as P.Diddy, Kanye West, 50 Cent, Aerosmith, Tom Petty, Aretha Franklin and the Eagles-among many others. The group continues to tour far and wide, opening for hip hop mainstays like Fat Joe, Akon, and the Wu-Tang Clan in locations as diverse, as Prague, Dubai, and South Africa.

Jennifer Hudson

Hudson is an American recording artist, actress and spokesperson. She came to prominence in 2004 as a finalist on the third season of American Idol, coming in seventh place. She made her film debut in Dreamgirls (2006), which won her an Academy Award for Best Supporting Actress, a Golden Globe Award, a BAFTA Award, an NAACP Image Award and a Screen Actors Guild Award. She won a Grammy Award for her eponymous debut album, Jennifer Hudson, which was released in 2008 on Arista Records and was certified gold by the RIAA for selling over 800,000 copies in the US; sales exceeded 1 million copies worldwide.

Jamie Foxx

Foxx is an American actor, singer-songwriter, stand-up comedian, and talk radio host. As an actor, his work in the film Ray earned him the Academy Award and BAFTA Award for Best Actor as well as the Golden Globe Award for Best Actor in a musical/comedy. He is also a Grammy Award winning musician, producing three albums which have charted highly on the Billboard 200: Unpredictable, which topped the chart, Best Night of My Life, and Intuition. Most recently, Foxx starred in the film Django Unchained.

DJ D’Nice

D-Nice (born Derrick Jones) is a disc jockey, beat boxer, rapper, producer, and photographer. He currently works as an in-demand DJ as well as a photographer.

DJ Moose

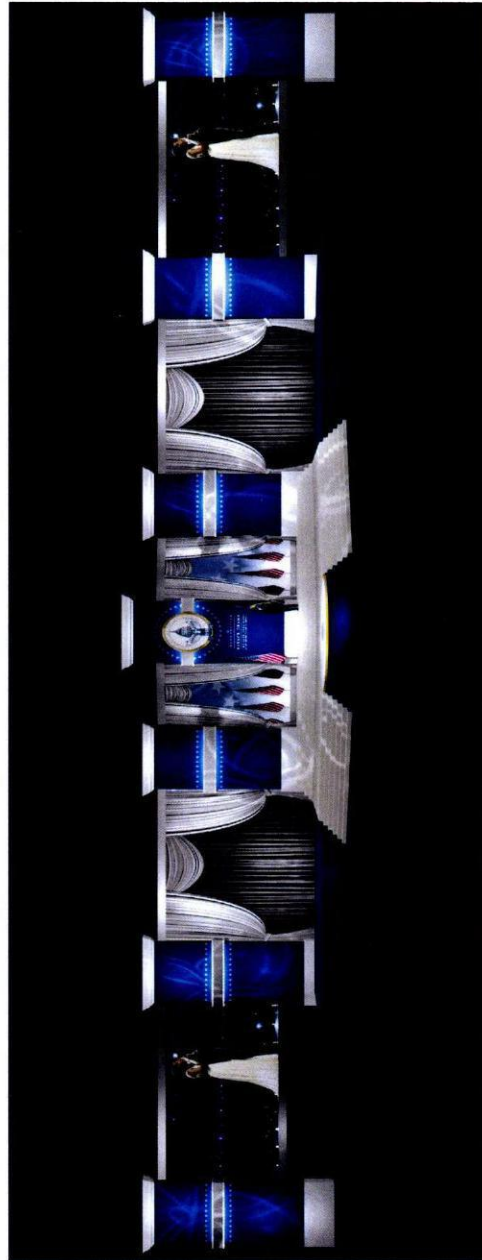

DJ Moose is an Atlanta-based DJ with over 20 years of experience in clubs. He has performed at parties across North America and Europe.

DJ Mel

Austin’s most well-known and eclectic turntablist, DJ Mel spins everything from industrial and acid house to techno and trance music, often in one night. What separates Mel from other local DJs is his ability to seamlessly transition between or mash up these different styles, creating a lucid experience for the listener. A Killeen native, DJ Mel Sandico has been working the ones and twos since the mid-1990s, helping establish a home for hip-hop in Austin.

V. REMARKS

None.

VI. BACKGROUND

Three days before George Washington took the oath of office as the first president of the United States, Congress passed the following resolution:

Resolved, That after the oath shall have been administered to the President, he, attended by the Vice President and members of the Senate and House of Representatives, shall proceed to St. Paul's Chapel, to hear divine service. (Annals of Congress, Vol. 1, p. 25, April 27, 1789)

The Right Rev. Samuel Provoost (1742–1815), newly appointed chaplain of the United States Senate and first Episcopal bishop of New York, performed “divine service” at St. Paul's Chapel on April 30, 1789, immediately following Washington's inauguration.

In the aftermath of the Civil War and the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, the Rev. John G. Butler, pastor of Luther Place Memorial Church in Washington, D.C., and chaplain of both the U. S. House of Representatives (1865–1875) and the Senate (1886–1893), organized interfaith inaugural prayer meetings in the nation’s capital commencing in 1869. These services continued well into the twentieth century.

In 1933, the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, third Episcopal bishop of Washington, revived the tradition of a national prayer service in conjunction with the inauguration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The service was held at 4 o’clock on the afternoon of March 4, 1933. FDR did not attend because the Inaugural Parade did not conclude until 6 o’clock.

President Roosevelt attended annual national patriotic services at the Cathedral held on the anniversary of his first inauguration from 1934 to 1936, and after his second inauguration on January 20, 1937. Prior to FDR’s third and fourth inaugurations during wartime in 1941 or 1945, Roosevelt confined his attendance to the private prayer service held at St. John’s Church on Lafayette Square.

Beginning with Ronald Reagan’s second inauguration in 1985, presidential inaugural prayer services have been held at the Cathedral. The exception was President Bill Clinton, who chose Metropolitan AME Church, the historic black church in downtown Washington, for both of his inaugural prayer services.

Prayer of St. Patrick	Michael McCarthy (b. 1966)
God be with me, God within me, God behind me, God before me, God beside me, God to win me, God to comfort and restore me. God beneath me, God above me, God in quiet, God in danger, God in hearts of all that love me, God in mouth of friend and stranger.

A PRAYER FOR THE DAY

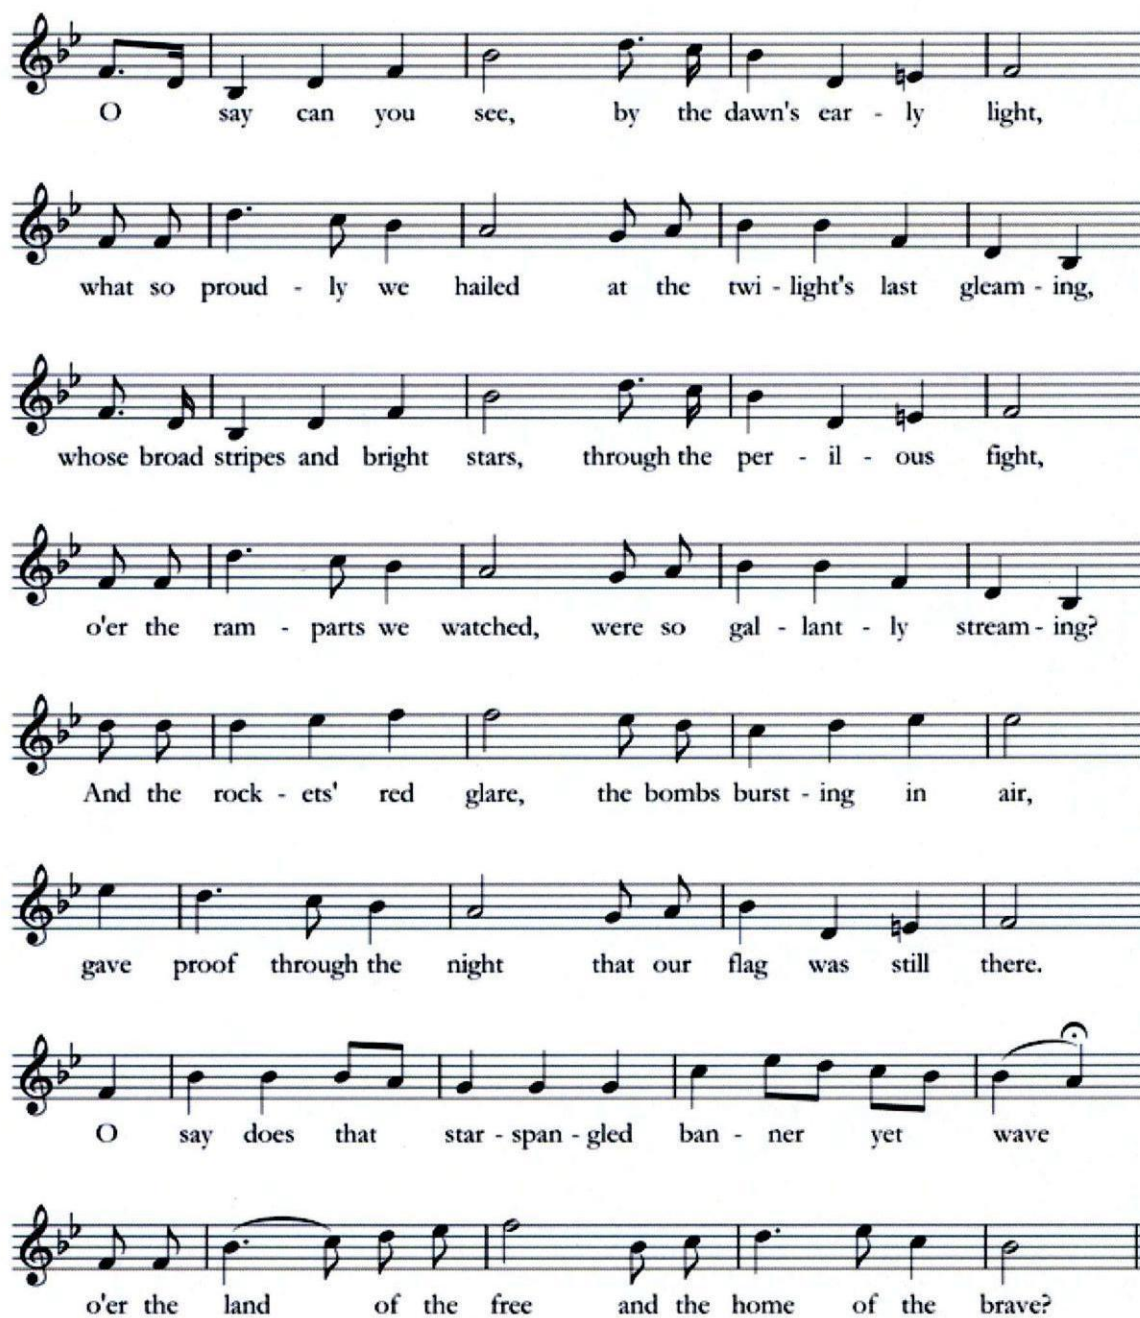

The Reverend Dr. Barbara Williams-Skinner
Co-Chair, National African American Clergy Network

Look graciously, Mighty God, upon this land. Where it is in pride, subdue it. Where it is in need, supply it. Where it is in error, rectify it. Where it is in default, restore it. And where it holds to that which is just and compassionate, support it. In your holy name we pray. Amen.

THE FIRST READING

Isaiah 55:6–11

*The Reverend Elder Nancy L. Wilson
Moderator, Universal Fellowship Metropolitan Community Churches*

Seek the Lord while he wills to be found; call upon him when he draws near. Let the wicked forsake their ways and the evil ones their thoughts; and let them turn to the Lord, and he will have compassion, and to our God, for he will richly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts, nor your ways my ways, says the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. For as rain and snow fall from the heavens and return not again, but water the earth, bringing forth life and giving growth, seed for sowing and bread for eating, so is my word that goes forth from my mouth; it will not return to me empty; but it will accomplish that which I have purposed, and prosper in that for which I sent it.

ANTHEM

For the beauty of the earth

Sung by the Cathedral Choir

John Rutter (b. 1945)

For the beauty of the earth,
For the beauty of the skies,
For the love which from our birth
Over and around us lies,
Lord of all, to thee we raise
This our joyful hymn of praise.

For the beauty of each hour
Of the day and of the night,
Hill and vale, and tree and flower,
Sun and moon, and stars of light.
Lord of all, to thee we raise
This our joyful hymn of praise.

For the joy of human love,
Brother, sister, parent, child,
Friends on earth, and friends above,
For all gentle thoughts and mild,
Lord of all, to thee we raise
This our joyful hymn of praise.

For each perfect gift of thine
To our race so freely given,
Graces human and divine,
Flow'rs of earth and buds of heav'n,
Lord of all, to thee we raise
This our joyful hymn of praise.

II Corinthians 4:6–10

*His Eminence Donald Cardinal Wuerl
Roman Catholic Archbishop of Washington, District of Columbia*

It is the God who said, ‘Let light shine out of darkness,’ who has shone in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God. But we have this treasure in clay jars, so that it may be made clear that this extraordinary power belongs to God and does not come from us. We are afflicted in every way, but not crushed; perplexed, but not driven to despair; persecuted, but not forsaken; struck down, but not destroyed; always carrying in the body the death of Jesus, so that his life may also be made visible in our bodies.

Determined to Go On

Patrick Lundy (b. 1967)

To go on, to go on; I'm determined; yes I am, to go on.
Whatever comes my way; I'll trust you and obey.
For I am determined, yes, I am, to go on.

I'm pressing on, the upward way;
New heights I'm gaining each and every day.

Determined, I will make it.
Determined, I will take it.
The race is not given to the swift, nor to the strong;
But to the one who endureth, 'til the very end.

Might not be able to feel it, nor even see it;
Walk by faith, not by sight.
Might not be able to feel it, nor even see it;
Walk by faith, not by sight.

It's mine, mine, my healing
It's mine, mine, my deliverance
It's mine, mine, my break through
It's mine, mine, my blessing

Say Yes! I believe it.
Say Yes! I receive it.

For I am determined yes, I am, to go on.

Bishop Schori

Almighty God, you have given us this good land as our heritage.
Make us always remember your generosity and constantly do your will.
Bless our land with honest industry, and an honorable way of life.
Save us from violence, discord, and confusion;
from pride and arrogance, and from every evil way.
Make us who come from many nations with many different languages a united people.
Defend our liberties and give those whom we have entrusted with the authority of government the spirit of wisdom, that there might be justice and peace in our land.
When times are prosperous, let our hearts be thankful,
and in troubled times, do not let our trust in you fail.
In your holy name we pray.

Earl Smith is the man behind a military patch that President Obama prizes

By Karen Tumulty
Published: January 18

AUSTIN — That February morning in 2008 found Barack Obama decidedly out of sorts.

He was locked in one battle with Hillary Rodham Clinton for the Democratic nomination that showed no signs of ending — and another with a vicious cold that felt the same way.

As he rode the service elevator in the backway of a convention hotel here, the snowy-haired African American operating it turned suddenly. He held out a black-and-gold bit of fabric embroidered with a screaming eagle.

“Senator Obama, I have something I want to give you,” the man said. “I’ve carried this military patch with me every day for 40 years, and I want you to carry it, and it will keep you safe in your journey.” Obama tried to refuse, but the older man persisted.

Big endeavors can find their meaning in small moments.

Later that day, Obama and his aides discussed the encounter. The future president pulled the patch from his pocket, along with about a dozen other items people had pressed upon him.

“This is why I do this,” he said. “Because people have their hopes and dreams about what we can do together.”

Two American stories intersected that morning in that elevator. The more famous, of course, is the one that begins its next chapter on Monday, as the nation’s first black president takes the oath of office for a second term.

But the other story also tells a lot about where this country has been and how far it has come.

No one in Obama’s small party that day noticed the man’s name tag or, if anyone did, the fact that it said Earl Smith was quickly forgotten.

No one knew how much of Smith’s life had been woven into a patch that, over four decades, found its way from the shoulder of an Army private to the pocket of a future commander-in-chief.

It was the only shred of cloth he had saved from the uniform of a nightmarish year in Vietnam. Smith fired artillery with a brigade that suffered 10,041 casualties during the course of the war. The brigade’s soldiers received 13 Congressional Medals of Honor.

The patch was waiting among his possessions when Smith was pardoned by the state of Georgia in 1977 after spending three years in prison for a crime he claimed was self-defense.

Smith kept it close as his lucky charm while he rebuilt his life and his reputation, starting with a job vacuuming hallways and changing sheets in an Atlanta Marriott. He carried it with him as he traveled halfway around the world again, to positions in hotels far from home, Riyadh in Saudi Arabia and Abu Dhabi in the United Arab Emirates.

Along the way, as he tended to travelers and made sure VIP gatherings went smoothly, he met three U.S. presidents.

His instincts told him Obama would make it four.

Like just about anyone else who was alive on Nov. 22, 1963, Smith can describe exactly where he was when he heard the horrific news: He was coming off a high school football practice field in his home town of San Benito, Tex.

Though not yet old enough to have voted for the man slain in Dallas, "I was devastated — a lot of us young people were — because John Kennedy was the young president," recalled Smith, now 68.

"When I met Senator Obama, that feeling I had when I was 19 years old. That feeling was there. I thought I would never live to see such a feeling again."

In that short ride between hotel floors, Smith did not have the time or the words to "say a lot of the things that I wanted to say." So he offered a gift and a wish — that the badge of his resilience might lend its protection to another generation's young president.

"I thought he might put it on his desk, and every once in a while, he would look at it," Smith added. "And if he got in a situation where he was not feeling well, or some troubled times, I wanted him to be able to look at that patch and see we, the American people — we're here."

Totems from supporters

Obama carried the patch in his pocket, said his close friend and top adviser Valerie Jarrett, until the end of the campaign.

He had an almost-spiritual regard for the totems and trinkets that people gave him as he made his way to the White House.

When Time correspondent Jay Newton-Small asked Obama late in the 2008 campaign to show her the contents of his pockets, they included a memorial bracelet for a son fallen in Iraq, a gambler's chit, a silver charm engraved in Braille, a tiny Hindu monkey god, a Madonna medal.

Jarrett first told me the story of the patch a few days before that election, in an interview aboard Obama's campaign plane.

As the second inauguration neared, I wondered what had become of the generous stranger. Had the reality of the Obama presidency matched his hopes for it?

The chances seemed great that the man had long since retired or moved on. Jarrett said she had never known who he was and had no idea where he might be.

Through reconstructing Obama's schedule from five years ago, aides offered one possibility where the encounter might have happened, and I put in a call to the human resources office of the Hyatt Regency in the Texas capital on Jan. 4. Yvonne Moore answered the phone. She never had heard the story, but 90 minutes later, she sent an e-mail:

"I am so excited to tell you that it is our very own Earl Smith / Director of Security. . . . It took a bit of convincing to get him to consider calling you, but he promises he will."

I forwarded the news to Jarrett, and she sent an emotional letter to Smith that day. She told him she thinks of him every time she drives through the White House gates. Jarrett has often cited him in commencement addresses and political speeches.

"I challenge myself to try to do something in the course of the day that would make you proud. I often have wondered how you are doing and regret that I never learned your name so that I could thank you for the joy your gift has given me every morning and each time I repeat the story of our brief encounter," Jarrett wrote.

"Of course, the President remembers you too," she added. "We are in Hawaii enjoying a short break and he asked me to invite you to Washington so that he can thank you for believing in him. Please let me know if you would like to come. It would be such a thrill to see you again!"

To Obama and the others who had been on the elevator that day, the patch retained a special significance.

But they never learned the story that went with it.

Texas roots

Willie Earl Smith Jr. traces his Texas roots to the black cowboys who rode the Chisholm trail after slavery ended. His forebears scraped together enough money to buy land at the bottom tip of the state, only to lose it when times got bad.

Work defined life. His mother, Rosie Josephine Lasley Oliver, worked in the kitchen of a rich family; family lore had it that a young Dwight D. Eisenhower once complimented her cooking. The only father he knew was Andrew Oliver, a laborer at a cotton gin, whom the widowed Rosie married when Earl was a baby.

The eldest of 10 surviving children in this blended family, Smith washed dishes at San Benito's Stonewall Jackson Hotel before school and after football practice.

He also worked in Rio Grande Valley fields for 50 cents an hour. An older kid who picked cotton around the same time as Smith would become San Benito's biggest celebrity. Smith knew him as Baldemar Huerta, but he later made Tejano-flavored records under the name Freddy Fender and topped the 1970s pop and country charts.

Smith was a veterinarian's assistant when the draft caught up with him in 1965. His orders were to report to the 101st Airborne in Phan Rang, which is what earned him the screaming eagle patch. When he arrived in Vietnam in 1966, however, he got a new assignment.

Fresh troops were needed to replenish the ravaged 173rd Airborne Brigade. It had been created in March 1963 specifically for jungle fighting. The brigade members' official military nickname was "sky soldiers," but the 3,000 or so men of the 173rd called themselves "the herd."

All told, the 173rd fought 14 campaigns in Vietnam and remained in combat longer than any other American military unit since the Revolutionary War, said Guy Nasuti, an information specialist at the U.S. Army War College's military history institute.

More than 1,600 members of the herd did not make it back alive.

Smith declined to talk much about what it was like over there, although he said it gave him nightmares for 15 years. His exposure to artillery fire also cost him part of his hearing. Without his aids in, he is deaf to the tick of a watch, the rustle of paper, the song of a bird.

Smith has moved on from Vietnam in some ways; in others, he hasn't.

It bothers him to see the criticism that is being aimed at another Vietnam veteran, the one who is Obama's choice to head the Pentagon.

"Look at Senator Chuck Hagel," he said. "All of a sudden, he's got people taking shots at him, and there's a possibility he may not even become defense secretary. Here's a person that would be the first time in our history [someone who] came from the ranks of the enlisted persons to be a secretary of defense. Can you imagine how every service person now, male or female, or those of us in the past — can you imagine how we would feel if that didn't take place?"

Smith is a private man, who bears witness — to the war and the difficulties that followed — in a private way.

"I never went to Washington, to the wall, the Vietnam [memorial]," he said. "I never wanted to go, purposely, because I'd rather remember the guys that didn't make it back in my own way. I thought that if I went to the monument, it would be too overpowering.

"I think I have enough strength to go now."

A different kind of battle

A different kind of hell awaited Smith when he returned to the United States, after he was discharged at Fort Campbell, Ky., and found his way to Atlanta.

The court record of what happened on Aug. 16, 1973, describes a robbery and assault. In Smith's version, it was an argument with acquaintances at an apartment complex that drew in a neighbor who happened to be an off-duty cop.

"He comes back with a gun, and he puts the gun to my head, and he says, 'Boy, I'm going to kill you. N-I-G-G-E-R, I'm going to blow your head off,' " Smith recalled, spelling out the word he would not bring himself to say.

They struggled. Smith got the gun but not before he was shot in the hip and leg.

"I took the gun. I left the scene, and I went to a service station," Smith said. "I said, 'Look, I've got this gun. I want you to call the police.' "

It was the word of a young black man against that of a police officer. Among the lesser of five counts against Smith was stealing the Smith & Wesson .38 that shot him. A court document valued the pistol at $75.

"No money, no understanding of the court system — I had a lawyer that I thought was my friend, who entered a plea of guilty on me that I knew nothing about. And when I got to the courts, it was just too late," Smith said.

Sentenced to five years for aggravated assault, Smith began writing letters — to lawyers, right up to then-Gov. Jimmy Carter.

"I felt bitter," he said. "Coming from Vietnam, coming from a combat zone, you think, 'You know, I deserve a little better than this.' "

Somehow, his plight caught the attention of Mamie Reese, the first African American woman named to the Georgia Board of Pardons and Paroles.

"Several of the parole board were political hacks, but Mamie Reese was really a decent person," said Allen Ault, a former Georgia Department of Corrections director who is now dean of the College of Justice and Safety at Eastern Kentucky University.

The board was not known to be generous with clemency, especially in a case like Smith's.

"Typically, they would just reject it on the face of it," Ault said, recalling that one member insisted that petitioners prove they had a personal relationship with Jesus.

But when Reese, then the board's chairman, submitted Smith for a pardon under a special program for first offenders, he won it, two years before his scheduled release.

Smith had cleared his record, and he was determined to clear his name. His mother, however, counseled him against it.

"I said, 'Mom, I want to spend the rest of my life trying to show that this just didn't happen this way,' " Smith said. "She said, 'Son, look. I know your heart. I know you. I believe what you said. Let it go. It's just not worth it.' "

He hopes that the way he has lived is the proof that will matter.

"I've always tried to [focus on] character and honesty and sincerity and being a good person," Smith said. "Since that time, I think the only thing I've ever gotten is a traffic ticket. Sometimes, you could be at the wrong place at the wrong time. Sometimes, innocent people — I'm blessed that my life is preserved. I'm blessed. I could have died back there."

Smith moved forward, carrying his patch and keeping close a precious piece of paper.

"ORDERED that all disabilities resulting from the above stated sentence(s) be and the same are hereby removed," reads the pardon certificate dated March 28, 1977. "And ORDERED FURTHER that all civil and political rights lost as a result of the offense(s) be and the same are hereby restored."

A new career path

The hotel business — which Smith prefers to call "the hospitality industry" — turned out to suit him. And he suited it.

His job as a "floor houseman" at the Marriott led to one as an attendant cleaning 16 to 18 rooms a day. Sorting dirty sheets and towels set him up for his first management position, as a laundry manager with a Marriott in Chicago. Eventually, he became what Marriott called a director of services, supervising a range of operations from the laundry to the health club.

One job that he could never do, however, was the front desk. Not with his hearing being what it was.

There was the stint in the Middle East. "Abu Dhabi was just the sticks. Now it's not that anymore," he said. Smith met Gerald R. Ford and George H.W. Bush while he was working in Atlanta, and then-Gov. George W. Bush in Austin.

At the Hyatt, which hired him in 1998, Smith has made fans among less-famous guests, such as Canadian businessman James Thomas.

"Earl Smith at Austin Hyatt rocks!" Thomas tweeted on March 1. "@hyattconcierge Thanks for the awesome above and beyond service!"

When a bleary-eyed Thomas accidentally dropped off his credit card instead of his room key at a pre-dawn checkout last year, Smith was dogged in his efforts to get the card back to its owner.

"There's something about him that restores your faith in humanity," Thomas, the marketing vice president at recruiting software firm Talent Technology, said in an interview. "I don't know where people like him come from."

Smith's life outside of work came together nicely, as well. A brief early marriage had fallen apart. Then came one night when Smith saw two women stranded next to a broken-down car by the roadside.

Smith fixed their tire and was smitten by one of the women. "I told her, 'Look, I know you don't talk to strangers, but you seem to be a real nice lady. And I know you don't give your number to strangers, but I'm going to give you my number, and tell you where I work and where I live, and if you foresee that you want to call me, maybe we could go have a cup of coffee or a cup of tea,' " he said.

It took Claudia Howard six months to phone. They have been married 32 years and have two grown children, a daughter and a son.

The Obama years have been good to his family, Smith said. Claudia is retired from teaching. His kids are working.

If he is disappointed, it is not with the president but with politics.

"It's not like it used to be," Smith said. "Now you've got red states, blue states. I'm a Democrat; I'm a Republican. We're Americans."

Connecting with Americans

There are two ways to measure how the country relates to its president. One is polling, the amalgam of the masses, pored over and picked apart by operatives and pundits. The other is a bond forged one American at a time.

With all the noise coming out of Washington, it is easy to overlook the fact that most Americans want to see the president succeed, regardless of whether they voted for him.

One measure of that connection is how many Americans feel compelled — as Smith did — to give the president a tangible piece of themselves. The 13 presidential libraries have cataloged nearly 600,000 such "artifacts," said Diane LeBlanc, a spokeswoman for the National Archives and Records Administration, which oversees the libraries.

Among them are the badge of a Port Authority officer who fell on 9/11, given by his mother to George W. Bush. Herbert Hoover's library displays hundreds of decorated flour sacks sent to him by Belgians grateful for shipments of food he had organized during World War I, before he was president.

With Obama, there also is the thrill that Americans of all colors have felt at the proof that a person doesn't have to be white to sit in that office.

As Smith put it: "There's a person who is one of us, even though he's well-educated — gone to Harvard, gone to Columbia University. And I had that feeling. That's what motivated me. . . . I've always had this feeling you always want to protect your president."

The president keeps the patch in what a White House official described as a "safe place" in his Chicago home.

As for Smith, he still rides that service elevator almost every day.

DATE: January 22, 2013
LOCATION: Oval Office
TIME: 1:00 – 1:15 PM
From: Chris Lu, Cabinet Affairs

I. PURPOSE

Hilda Solis was confirmed as Secretary of Labor on February 24, 2009. She is the first Hispanic woman to lead a Cabinet agency. She previously represented the 32nd Congressional District in California, a position she held from 2001-2009. Today is her last day at the Department of Labor.

Hilda's accomplishments include expanding the capacity of community colleges to provide employer-specific job training and ensuring that nearly 2 million people completed federally-funded job training programs, with over 1 million people earning industry-recognized credentials. Solis managed the spending of $67 billion in Recovery Act funds for unemployment insurance benefits, job training and placement, and worker protection. She also made veterans employment a priority, with a specific focus on women and homeless veterans.

On the enforcement side, calendar year 2011 saw the lowest-ever number of mine fatalities. In addition, fatalities in general industry and construction are at historic lows. Last year, DOL conducted the largest number of investigations in recent memory, collecting more than $280 million on behalf of more than 300,000 workers that were denied their rightful pay, overtime or leave benefits. In addition, DOL's enforcement and informal resolution programs have resulted in the recovery of almost $5 billion dollars for retirees and their families.

Solis has been a strong advocate for issues she feels passionately about – from helping to implement key aspects of the Affordable Care Act to leading the Administration's 2011 and 2012 summer jobs initiatives. The daughter of immigrant parents that met in a citizenship class in 1953, she has also been a tireless proponent of comprehensive immigration reform.

Solis was the first in her family to go to college and is proud to be the daughter of factory workers who paid union dues. Her father, Raul Solis, passed away in February 2012. He was a Teamsters shop steward in Mexico and, after coming to the United States, worked at a battery recycling plant in the San Gabriel Valley. Her mother worked for over 20 years on the assembly line of Mattel and belonged to the United Rubber workers.

Today, the Secretary is joined by her husband, Sam, her mother, sisters and other members of their extended family. As you know, she is returning to California to help take care of her ailing mother and possibly resume her career in elective office.

II. PARTICIPANTS

- Hilda Solis
- Sam Sayyad (husband)
- Juana Solis (mother)
- Bea Solis (sister)
- Aydin Pasebani (nephew / Bea's son)
- Irma Rincon (sister)
- Anna Solis (sister)
- Lety Solis (sister)
- Chris Solak, (brother in-law/Lety's husband)

III. SEQUENCE OF EVENTS

- YOU will first meet one-on-one with Secretary Solis in the Oval Office.
- After your meeting concludes, her family will then join the two of you for a photo.
- Secretary Solis and her family depart.
