Ms. Nancy Daly

Dear Nancy:

I appreciated your letter and was saddened to learn of the loss of your mother. Few things can heal the ache a loved one leaves behind, but I hope you find some comfort in knowing your efforts may help spare others the pain you have had to bear. In your resolve, we see the fortitude of the American spirit.

Stories like yours motivate my Administration as we continue to support medical research and strive to improve the lives of all those touched by illness. I trust you take pride in the work you are doing, and I wish you all the best.

Sincerely,

[POTUS AP]

MAR 30 2015

National Alzheimer's Disease Awareness Month, 2014

By the President of the United States of America

A Proclamation

Across our Nation, as many as 5 million Americans live with Alzheimer's disease—currently an irreversible, incurable, and fatal disease. Together with their loved ones, these individuals experience the tragic realities of a disease that gradually erases cherished memories, affects behavior, and destroys the ability to live independently and carry out the simplest daily tasks. This month, we recognize all those whose lives have been touched by Alzheimer's, and we renew our commitment to making progress in the war against it.

The Federal Government is the world's leading funder of Alzheimer's research, and we are dedicated to finding ways to prevent and effectively treat this devastating disease by 2025. Guided by the National Plan to Address Alzheimer's Disease, my Administration is working to enhance care for Alzheimer's patients, expand support for all people with dementia, and strengthen public-private partnerships to support the Alzheimer's community. We have funded major new clinical trials, helped train health care providers to diagnosis and manage dementia, and launched a new website that serves as a one-stop resource on Alzheimer's issues. And this year, as part of our Brain Research through Advancing Innovative Neurotechnologies (BRAIN) Initiative, we announced new investments to support the research that could unlock the answers to this disease. To learn more about Alzheimer's disease—including risk factors and early signs and symptoms—and to access resources for patients and caregivers, Americans can visit www.Alzheimers.gov.

During National Alzheimer's Disease Awareness Month, we join with researchers, health care providers, and patient advocates across our country to lift up all those who are battling this disease every day. As we come together to raise awareness about Alzheimer's, we honor the individuals who lost their lives to it, as well as the devotion and selflessness of the millions of caregivers who endure the financial and emotional strains of this disease. In their spirit, let us continue our work to end this debilitating ailment and its devastating effects.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, BARACK OBAMA, President of the United States of America, by virtue of the authority vested in me by the Constitution and the laws of the United States, do hereby proclaim November 2014 as National Alzheimer's Disease Awareness Month. I call upon the people of the United States to learn more about Alzheimer's disease and support the individuals living with this disease and their caregivers.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this thirty-first day of October, in the year of our Lord two thousand fourteen, and of the Independence of the United States of America the two hundred and thirty-ninth.

Message: Dear Mr. President and Mrs. Obama-

I'm Nancy Daly. I am the Founder and National Team Captain and Coordinator of the national team- Actors and Artists Unite to end Alzheimer's for the Walk to end Alzheimer's that I founded in 2011 in honor of my mom and my dad who was her caregiver. We are the only non-corporate national team. We now have 42 teams across the country and we started with four and yet we have raised over $116,000. We build this team on our own- via social media and good old fashioned word of mouth. It is very rewarding for me because now that we are a national team, if anyone says- "Nance- do we have a team in Atlanta? Do we have a team in Denver?" I get to say- "We do now!" this year, the Alzheimer's Association gave me the Outstanding Leadership award as the Outstanding National Team Captain and Coordinator. as far as I am concerned, it belongs to all of us. It is very rewarding to have this acknowledgment in the same year that such brilliant films such as "Still Alice" and Glen Campbell's "I'll Be Me" are bringing awareness to the nightmare of living with Alzheimer's. On the walk in New York- we had members of the casts of "Gotham", "Law and Order" and "Mamma Mia" join us to walk with us. I got a call from Alzheimer's Association offices around the country. "What kind of pull do you all have? Our phones are exploding! "We heard you have an actors' team! We want to join the actors' team!" How fantastic is that? So- our team put together a video to tell our story. I do believe you will enjoy it. It is a story of a dream coming true- with a lot of love and will and dedication of your friends. and this national team of artists and their friends and families is one of mine. Our motto is- when Actors and Artists Unite, the world can shift! and it has!

thank you so much for your heart and strength and compassion in leading our country. I am a military brat and I so very much appreciate your commitment to our troops and their families. Sincerely Yours and a very proud American-
Nancy Daly
